2 What type of tourist or visitor is being welcomed in each case?

Reading

Welcome – the first encounter

1 Match the words with their dictionary definitions.

1 encounter 3 hospitality
2 experience 4 welcome
a friendly and generous behaviour towards guests b a meeting, especially one that is sudden and unexpected c a greeting that is given to somebody when they arrive, especially a friendly one d something that has happened to you, often unusual or exciting

2 Read the text. Which subtitle do you think is the best?

• Tourism: the encounters industry
• Tourism: the experience industry
• Tourism: the hospitality industry
• Tourism: the welcome industry

3 Which of the six points (a–f) would include this advice?

1 Offer to carry a bag, to get a drink, to open the door, anything to show you’re there to help.
2 Do your research – know who you’re meeting, know where you’re going.
3 Have confidence in your abilities and personality.
4 There are many ways of greeting in different countries, but the smile is universal.
5 Dress appropriately – be smart, clean, and tidy.
6 Find out about the person you’re with, and ask them about themselves.

4 Can you think of more advice to add to the list above?

An introduction to working in tourism

Tourism is about encounters – encounters with people, with places, and with experiences. And the most important encounter is the first one: arrival and greetings. Get that one right and the rest is much easier.

Arrival encounters can take place anywhere: at the airport, at the hotel, at the campsite, in the restaurant, on the tour bus, or at the attraction. Wherever it takes place, the rules are the same:

a Be prepared
d Be interested b Look the part e Be helpful
c Smile
f Be yourself.
Where in the world?

What do you know about Singapore?

1. Is it an island or on the mainland?
2. Where is it located?
3. Why do tourists visit Singapore and where do they come from?

Read on and find out.

A warm welcome to the world's most colourful city - Singapore

An exciting tropical destination with modern western comforts and an Asian soul.

Fact file
Location: the Republic of Singapore consists of the island of Singapore and around sixty smaller islands off the southern tip of Malaysia, 135 kilometres north of the equator.
Capital: Singapore City is the country's capital and occupies the main island.
Size: 650 square kilometres
Population: approximately 4.2 million
Tourism
Visitors outnumber the local population by 1.6 to 1.

Visitors come from many countries. The top three are Indonesia (17%), Japan (13%), and Australia (6%). They usually stay for short visits, often stopovers en route to other Asian countries or Australia or New Zealand, or for sightseeing and shopping.

Transport hub
Changi Airport consists of three terminals and is one of the most important air hubs in the region.
The International Airport serves 167 cities in 53 countries and is capable of handling 64 million passengers a year.

Transport from the airport
Number 36 bus to Orchard Road
Maxicab shuttle bus (06.00–24.00)
MRT train (Mass Rapid Transit) (05.30–23.00).
The Port of Singapore is the world's busiest port for cargo, and is also a stopping place for cruise ships.

Cultural differences in greetings

Even before you say a word, there are many ways of greeting people. How you do it will depend on many things, for example your nationality and culture, how well you know the person you are greeting, your relative ages, and your gender. You need to think about who you are meeting and greeting before you do it.

1 Do you know what each of these ways of greeting is?

2 Would you use these greetings? In which situation?

3 Which of the greetings in 1 do you associate with the following regions?
- Northern Europe
- Southern Europe
- Eastern Europe
- North America
- Central and South America
- the Middle East
- Africa
- Asia
- Australasia

Listening
Greeting and introducing

1 Listen to eight greetings and introductions. For each one, answer the questions.
1 Where does the conversation take place?
2 Have the speakers met before?
3 Is the conversation formal or informal?
4 Is another person or are other people introduced?

2 Listen again and complete the sentences.
1 Hello, Peter – it’s ___________ again. Welcome to Atlanta. How was your flight?
2 Hello, and ___________ joining us tonight.
___________ Praphat and _________ my colleague Amphai. We’ll _________ on tonight’s excursion.

Greeting and introducing

1 Look at the expressions from Listening and add more examples.

Greeting
Hello, Peter – it’s great to see you again.

Welcoming
Welcome to Atlanta.

Introducing yourself
My name’s Praphat.

Introducing someone else
This is my colleague Amphai.

Checking someone’s identity
You must be Ms Holweger.

Making an offer
Can I get you some more wine?

2 Match the following responses with some of the conversations in Listening.

a. That’s very kind. It’s rather heavy. Is the car very far?
   - b. It was OK, although it was rather long. Are we going straight to the hotel?
   - c. No, I don’t think we’ve met before. You’ve done a great job.
   - d. No, thank you, I’m OK. It’s very nice though - where’s it from?

3 In pairs, practise the conversations. Try to continue the conversations for a few more sentences.

Speaking

Welcoming visitors

1 You’re meeting a visitor to your country at the airport. Apart from ‘welcome’, what topics might you talk about? Choose from the list or think of your own.
   - comfortable flight?
   - visited this country before?
   - hungry or thirsty?
   - the weather where they came from
   - a brief history of your city
   - what’s going to happen in the next hour or so
   - people and places in the visitor's country that you know

For each one you choose, what would your first sentence be?

2 You are at a reception for an international tourism fair in your city. Work in two groups.

Group A: Meeters and greeters

You are working at the reception. Your job is to welcome each of the guests and begin a short conversation. You may want to offer something or introduce the guest to another person.

Notes

Make sure that you treat each guest with the appropriate level of respect and formality.

Two of the guests should be people that you already know.

None of the guests should be left on their own.

You should meet and greet as many different guests as possible.

Group B: Guests

Write your name and job / position on a badge / label. Choose from this list or think of your own.

- a local hotel manager
- an invited guest from another country
- a local tour operator
- a local travel agent
- a tour guide
- the driver who brought the mayor
- the mayor of the city (a VIP)

When you have finished, change roles and repeat the activity.

Speaking

Car hire at an airport

Work in pairs. Student A, you are the customer. Choose a car from the form on p.8 and invent booking details as you wish. Student B, you are the car hire agent.

Role-play the conversation, following these stages.
- Greeting
- Ask name
- Make special offer
- Check booking details
- Check insurance options
- Check extras
- Ask for payment
- Check for any other requests
- Explain collection arrangements
- Say goodbye

Now change roles.

3 Use the questions to practise the dialogue with a partner.
Vocabulary

   1. domestic/ international terminal
   2. terminus
   3. arrivals lounge
   4. Customs
   5. border control
   6. immigration
   7. harbour
   8. meeting point

2. What happens at each place?

3. Match a word in A with a word in B. There may be more than one possibility.

4. Complete the arrival information sheet using words from 3.

   If you have a __________ flight, please go to the __________ lounge.
   There is a __________ bus between the airport and the city centre. This scheduled __________ takes approximately 30 minutes (45 minutes in the __________). Alternatively, you can go to the __________ rank.
   If you have pre-booked the transfer __________, please go to the information __________ to meet your driver.
   If you have pre-booked a hire car, please go to the __________ desks.

Reading
Cape Town arrival information
1. In pairs, read these questions. Which of the words from Vocabulary do you think will appear in the answers?
   - How long will it take to drive from the airport to the city centre?
   - What transport services are available from the airport to the city centre?
   - Where can you find a taxi?
   - How much will a taxi cost?
   - Where do the intercity buses and mainline trains terminate?
   - Where can tourists find information?

2. Read the text and answer the questions in 1.

3. Look at the text again. Find examples of sentences that include the following words.
   - there is / there are
   - you’ll need
   - you’ll find
   - if
   - everything you need
   - operate(s)
   - terminate(s)
   - best place
   - must

4. For each sentence you found, write a different sentence.

   Example
   (from the text) There’s a scheduled service to the main train terminus.
   (different sentence) There’s a minibus service to the city.

Find out
What are the nearest international points of arrival to the place where you are studying? Research the different points - by air, land, and sea (if appropriate) - and find out as much about them as possible.

Writing
Arrival information
Write an arrival information sheet for your city or region. If appropriate, include sections on
- general arrival information
- airport to city / town centre
- intercity buses and trains
- car hire
- information.
Arriving in Cape Town

Airport
Cape Town International Airport (flight information, tel: 934 0407) is on the Cape Flats, 22 km and half an hour’s drive (longer during rush hour) from the city centre. Intercity operates two shuttle buses from the airport: there’s a scheduled service to the main train terminus, running on the half hour and costing R30. From their office in the international terminal they operate a door-to-door transfer service which goes to anywhere on the Peninsula.

A cheaper door-to-door option is the 24-hour Backpackers Airport Shuttle, a minibus that takes passengers from the airport to anywhere in the city centre. The service operates in response to demand, which means you’ll either need to pre-book or wait up to 45 minutes for them to get to the airport.

If you want to travel by car, there are taxi ranks outside the terminals (about R100 to the city centre). Please note that taxis must display the driver’s name and a clearly visible meter. Inside the terminals you’ll find the desks of the major car rental firms. There are no trains from the airport.

InterCity buses and trains
Greyhound, Intercity, and Translux intercity buses, and mainline trains from other provinces, all terminate in the city centre. Around the interlinked central complex that includes the railway station and the Golden Acre shopping mall, everything you need for your next move is within two or three blocks of here.

Information
The best place for information is the Cape Town Tourist Information Office, on the corner of Burg and Castle Sts.

Client perceptions of hotels

1 Work in pairs.
   1 The questionnaire in Take off was given to the guests of a major hotel company. Why do you think the company did the survey?
   2 Who do you think the company sent the results to?
      a the company’s hotel managers
      b their hotel staff
      c the staff at the local hotel training school
   Read the start of the memo and see if you were right.

2 Now read the rest of the memo and answer the questions.
   1 Which of the results do you find most surprising?
   2 Why is it difficult to define what ‘luxury’ means to individual guests?
   3 There are many ways a hotel can make itself a ‘home’. Can you think of three?
   4 What can a hotel do to be seen as a real ‘office away from the office’?
   5 Can you think of examples of film stars or pop stars ‘letting their hair down’?

Questionnaire

Users’ perceptions of hotels

What’s a hotel for you? Choose one or two of the options below.

a A bed for the night   □

b A place to hide away   □

c Home from home   □

d The office when away from the office   □

e A bit of luxury once in a while  □

f A place where you can let your hair down  □

3 Which is most important for you when you travel away from home – feeling comfortable, feeling secure, or letting your hair down?

Dear Colleagues

Please study the enclosed results of our recent survey on client perceptions. These should then be commented on in your next staff training session.
In this unit

- how guests see hotels
- registering new arrivals
- prepositions of place
- hotel services
- the structure of modern hotels

Option A 32.8%
No surprise here — travel is tiring, and the average human body needs seven to eight hours’ sleep a day. In this respect, the hotel responds to a basic, physiological need, and so above all else, we must provide a comfortable bed in a quiet room.

Option B 8.6%
Everyone needs to feel safe, so our hotels clearly have to generate a feeling of security. We can do this in simple ways: all rooms should have a solid door and lock; the reception area should always offer a sense of order; staff should never run or appear stressed, etc.

Option C 7.1%
The need to feel at home is equally important for frequent and less frequent travellers. However, while frequent travellers feel this way because they are not at home often enough, less frequent travellers appreciate the ‘home from home’ touch in a hotel precisely because of the strangeness of their new surroundings. Two obvious ways of making the hotel feel like home are a genuine smile from all staff that guests meet, and the use of the guest’s name whenever possible. Please brainstorm others in the training session.

Option D 17.3%
Business travellers also have professional needs. In general, we probably need to improve what we offer here. An internet connection in a corner of the lobby is no longer enough.

Option E 31.4%
This should not come as a surprise. Our self-esteem is important to our overall health. The ‘feel-good’ factor of staying in hotels, then, is something that we need to keep in mind constantly as service providers. Please note, however, that exactly what each guest means by ‘luxury’ is not so easy to identify.

Option F 2.8%
This may be a surprise. We have too often assumed that for people away from home and on their own, a hotel would seem to be a great chance to do all those things they wouldn’t normally dare to do. No colleagues, no friends, no family, etc! This turns out not to be so.

Find out

1. Use the questionnaire from Take off, and survey your family and friends about how they see hotels. Translate the questions if necessary. Interview ten people and invite them to comment on their choices.

2. Combine the results of the whole class.

3. With a partner, work out the percentages for each option and then produce a chart.

4. Use the comments from the interviews to illustrate your chart.

Customer care

Welcoming guests

Eight simple rules for welcoming guests
- Smile when you greet the customer
- Listen to what the customer is saying
- Make eye contact, but don’t stare
- Make sure you look interested
- Address the customer by name
- Don’t interrupt the customer
- Keep a reasonable distance from the customer, not too close and not too far
- Always thank the customer when appropriate

In groups of three, practise welcoming each other to your class ‘hotel’. Take turns to be

- the receptionist — ask some simple questions, e.g. about the journey
- the guest — get the information you want
- the monitor — watch the receptionist and see how many of the ‘eight simple rules’ he or she follows.
Key cards greatly increase security in today’s hotels. They are re-programmed for each new guest, are cheaper to produce and replace than conventional keys, and can also be used for access to other hotel facilities such as the gym, or even the lifts.

Front office: Why is it called the front office? Because working in the front office makes you the first and last person the guest sees in the hotel. You will be responsible for the all-important first impressions that the guest receives. You can’t get much more ‘up front’ than that!

2 Listen to each arrival again. How were you able to tell which was which?

3 Listen to the whole of dialogue c and complete these sentences.

1 Good evening, sir, can I ________ you?
2 Could I just ________ some ________, please, Mr Scott?
3 And will you be ________ the ________?
4 Will you be ________ by ________ card?
5 Could I just ________ your card a ________, please, to ________ it?
6 And if you could ________ ________ here on the registration card?
7 And ________ is your ________ card.

Speaking
Registering new arrivals
1 Guests with a reservation.

1 Work in pairs. Student A, you are the receptionist. Look at the information on the computer screen. Check with the guest that all the details are correct. If they are, issue the key card and tell the guest which room and floor they are staying on. Student B, you are the guest.

2 Now change roles and repeat the activity.

2 Guests without a reservation.

Student A, you are the guest. Go to p.108. Student B, you are the receptionist. Go to p.116. Use the computer screen to help you to register your guest.

3 Make up your own data. You can be a guest with or without a reservation. You can be a regular guest (VIP 2) or a very important guest (VIP 1). Act out your conversation.

Pronunciation
1 Look at this phrase.

How can I help you?

The word in bold is the key word in the phrase. We need to be sure the client hears this word. Practise doing this by saying the key word first. Then add other words, like this:
1 ... help? 3 ... can I help you?
2 ... help you? 4 How can I help you?

2 Listen and do the same with the other phrases in Listening 3 until you are fluent with all of them.
I recruit personalities. I can teach someone how to run a hotel but I can't give them a personality. If they're computer literate, then we can teach them to use the hotel computer package they need to work reception. But if there's a guest in the lift and a member of staff too, they've got to have personality. They can't just ignore the guest.

Where things are

1. Look at the hotel plan.
   1. Find the breakfast room, the Cordon Bleu restaurant, and the ground floor lifts.
   2. Now find the hairdresser's, the gift shop, and Meeting room 1. Where are they?
   3. Listen to the receptionist and check your answers.

2. You are the receptionist. How would you answer these guests?
   1. Excuse me, where's the garage?
   2. Excuse me, do you have a gym?
   3. Excuse me, are there toilets near the wellness area?
   4. Excuse me, is there a business corner in the hotel?
   5. Hi, have you got a swimming pool?

3. Work in pairs. Student A, you are the guest. Choose six places in the hotel. Ask where the places are. Student B, you are the receptionist. Answer Student A's questions. Now change roles.

Speaking

Tell me where

1. Think about the building you study in. Think of five places a visiting student might need to find. Be the student and ask your partner where they are.
2. Now change roles and answer your partner's questions.
3. Think about where you live. How many rooms are there, which rooms are they, and where are they?
4. Tell your partner about where you live. Your partner has to draw a floor plan as he/she listens. When you have finished, check the plan.

The three-star Ostfriesland Hotel in Norden, Germany, has the world’s most unusual tariff system for rooms. Guests pay according to how much they weigh at a rate of €0.50 per kilogram. Somebody weighing 53 kg will pay just €26.50 a night, including breakfast.

Reading

Hotel services

1. Look quickly through the hotel leaflet below. When would you expect to be given this leaflet?
   1. on arrival
   2. on leaving the hotel
   3. on asking about a particular hotel service

2. Read the leaflet again and write T (true) or F (false).
   1. The hotel can make photocopies for business guests, but charges for the service.
   2. The hotel has car parking for only a few cars, so it is best to reserve a parking space before you arrive.
   3. The hotel accepts all disabled guests.
   4. You can check out of the hotel by yourself using the TV in your room.
   5. You are not allowed to take food to your room.
   6. You can leave a mobile phone charging its batteries in your room while you go out for a meal.

3. Find all the prepositions of place in the texts.

Writing

Hotel information

1. Work in groups of four or five. Make a list of all the services a hotel can offer in the following areas.
   - eating and drinking
   - recreation and relaxation
   - business services
   - room service and facilities
   - local transport and other services

2. Take responsibility for one of the five areas. Write the texts for the information for your services.

3. Swap texts. Check one of your partner’s texts for mistakes. Check especially the prepositions of place.

4. Together prepare a Services Directory with all of your descriptions.

Business services

Fax and photocopying services are available at Reception. Prices on request. There is a modem socket in each room for internet connections. Any calls that are made will be charged to your account.

Car parking

There are a limited number of spaces at the hotel available on a first come, first parked basis. All vehicles parked in the car park are parked at the owner’s risk. The hotel accepts no responsibility for any loss or damage caused to cars parked in the car park.

Disabled facilities

The hotel has a limited number of bedrooms suitable for the partially disabled.

Express checkout

This facility is available via your TV. Switch your TV on, press INFO on your remote control, then choose option 6 to view your account, and option 7 to check out of your room.

Food

A wide variety of Takeaway Menus are available at Reception. Takeaways can be enjoyed in the Bar on the ground floor, the Breakfast Room on the first floor, or in the comfort of your bedroom.

Green policy

The hotel has adopted some policies in the interest of the environment:

- Only towels left in the bath will be changed.

To conserve energy, the electricity supply to your room is controlled by the box on the wall near the door. To switch on the power, place your key card in the slot in the top of the box when you enter the room. Remove the key card when you leave, and the electricity will be switched off automatically.

Heating

The hotel has heating on from October to April.

The staff structure of hotels

1 Look at these hotel staff titles. Say if the people would work in 1 the front office
   2 housekeeping
   3 food and beverages.
   kitchen assistant chambermaid concierge front office manager head chef head waiter housekeeper porter
   receptionist

2 Roberta is the General Manager of the Hotel Concordia in Milan. Listen to her talking about the staff structure of the hotel and complete the diagram.

3 Listen again and answer the questions.
   1 What does the food and beverages department cover?
   2 How many housekeepers does Carlotta have in the high season?
   3 Why does Roberta prefer the term housekeeper over chambermaid?
   4 What does Silvio do?
It’s my job

Grzegorz Rosinski

Grzegorz works as a concierge in a hotel in Krakow, Poland. He says there is never a dull moment in his job, which brings him into direct contact with guests every day. What sorts of skills do you need to be a concierge? What sorts of things do guests ask? What have hot-air balloons got to do with Grzegorz’s work? Read on and find out.

Can you tell me three things you need to be able to do your job well?

You need to be a bit of a psychologist to understand your guests. That’s a key part of good customer services. You need English to be able to speak to international guests. And you need good communication skills.

How about three things you do most often?

1. Make dining reservations and obtain tickets for events
2. Provide information about local facilities and services such as shopping, dining, nightlife, and so on
3. Make travel arrangements

What do guests ask you for most often?

What is there to do in the city? Can you recommend a nice restaurant for us? What is the local food? Where are we on the map? How do I get to the airport?

What’s the thing you most like doing?

Planning special events, discos, parties, and celebrations. It includes booking performers and celebrities, and I get to meet them. They’re often really nice.

What’s the most unusual request you’ve ever had?

That’s easy! We had a couple on their honeymoon and they wanted to see the city from a hot-air balloon. It was easy to find a balloonist, but we couldn’t get permission to fly free over the city. In the end the balloon was launched in a park behind the hotel, but tied to the ground all the time.

Tourist Information Centres

Read the article.

1. How many ways of presenting information are mentioned?
2. What services are mentioned?
3. What skills are important if you work in a TIC?
4. Can a website provide the same services as a TIC?
5. What are the relative advantages and disadvantages of TICs and websites as sources of information for tourists and visitors?

Inside tourism: Information

Tourist information comes in a variety of forms, but the two most important are probably Tourist Information Centres (TICs) and websites.

TICs are found in city centres, major resorts, and transport terminals. Tourist information offices, which may be smaller than TICs, are also found in smaller towns and rural areas. Inside the TIC there will be displays of leaflets and brochures on local attractions, entertainment venues and events, transport information such as timetables and schedules, and listings of accommodation providers. Many TICs have touch-screen facilities and interactive information displays, as well as trained staff.

Staff will be expected to provide information on a range of areas such as which restaurant provides a high chair for a baby, the best place for a scenic walk or drive, how to get to local sights, and where the nearest toilets are. Some TICs will have an accommodation booking service, including booking accommodation at the next destination for tourists who are travelling around the region. They may also be able to reserve theatre tickets, arrange car rental, book an excursion or a guide, change currency, and even make an emergency dental appointment.

To work in a TIC, a pleasant and helpful personality is essential. You should have a good telephone manner, be able to work with computers, and have good written skills. Knowledge of a foreign language is also useful.

Customer care

Assessing customer types

Customers come in all shapes and sizes. Working in a Tourist Information Centre, you will meet people with very different characteristics and ways of behaving.

Here are some customer types. Do you recognize any of the types from people you know or have dealt with?

- The questioner: asks lots and lots of questions even though they don’t really need to know
- Straight to the point: wants a clear simple answer to their query, and nothing extra
- Empty head: not sure what they want to know, but feel they ought to ask something
- The shy one: wants help but won’t ask for it
- Know-it-all: wants to tell you how much they know
- The sponge: fascinated by everything you have to say and absorbs all the information

How would you deal with these customer types? Would you treat them all the same?

Find out

1. Research information services in your city or region, for example
   - Tourist Information Centres, guidebooks, websites

2. Collect as many examples of tourist information material as possible, including (if possible) English-language information material. Make sure you have at least one street map. This material will be useful in some of the later activities in this unit.
Listening

Tourist information

1. Listen to these extracts from different sources of tourist information. Decide if the information is
   a. a recorded information line
   b. given face-to-face
   c. from a phone helpline.

2. Listen again. What information is the enquirer asking about? Choose from this list:

   1  2  3  4  5
   a. sights to visit
   b. visas
   c. train availability
   d. theatre tickets
   e. art galleries
   f. booking accommodation
   g. currency exchange
   h. guided excursions
   i. child-friendly restaurants
   j. local maps

3. Read the listening script on p. 129 to check.

4. Note down the expressions that the tourism employees use to offer help.

Speaking

Giving information

1. Work in pairs. For each of the nine website headings a–i in Vocabulary 1 on p. 20, think of a piece of information for your city or region.

2. Compare your information with another pair.

3. Take turns to role-play dialogues in the TIC asking for and giving information on the different headings.

Listening

How do I get to ... ?

Look at the map of Southwold, a seaside resort in England.

1. Describe the location of the following places, using the preposition in brackets.
   1. TIC (next to)
   2. disabled toilets (opposite)
   3. disabled toilets (between)
   4. Town Hall (on)

   5. Sailors’ Reading Room (at the end of)

   6. school (near)
Where do you find them?

2 Listen to a tourist information officer giving directions from the TIC. Follow the routes and identify the places he is describing.

3 Listen again and complete the directions.

a When ______ 1 of the Information Centre, turn right and ______ 2 the High Street. Walk on through the Market Place ______ 3 a fork in the road. If you take the ______ 4 and go along Queen Street, ______ 5 some nice antique shops and a small art gallery and eventually ______ 6 a green hill. ______ 7 the hill ______ 8 the cannon and you’re there.

b The best way is to ______ 1 Church Street – it’s just ______ 2 to the right; can you see it? If you turn right ______ 3 Church Street, ______ 4 a lovely little green and ______ 5 the lighthouse – you can’t ______ 6 it. Just ______ 7 the lighthouse and then the seafront is just ______ 8 you. When you get to the seafront, ______ 9 and you can either ______ 10 the beach or the cliff. You’ll see it in the distance sticking out to sea. It ______ 11 any longer than fifteen minutes.

Giving directions and prepositions of movement

1 Which of the following are spoken by someone giving directions?
   1 The best way to go is …
   2 How do you get to …?
   3 Do you want the most direct route?
   4 If you turn left here, …
   5 I’m trying to get to the station.
   6 What you need to do is …

2 Match the phrases in A with the places in B. There will often be more than one possibility.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>A</th>
<th>B</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>go along</td>
<td>a the TIC</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>walk towards</td>
<td>b the hill</td>

<td>reach</td>
<td>h the fork in the road</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>take</td>
<td>i the right-hand turn</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>go past</td>
<td>j the market</td>
</tr>
</tbody>

3 Choose two of the pairings and try to link them using if, when, until, or and.

Example

Go along the street until you come to the market.

4 In pairs, use the map of Southwold to give each other directions to different places.

5 Use some of the maps you collected in Find out to practise asking for and giving directions in your own city or region.

Top three annual European Amusement / Theme Park Admissions
1 Disneyland Paris = 12.0 million
2 Blackpool Pleasure Beach, UK = 6.0 million
3 Tivoli Gardens, Copenhagen = 3.9 million

Pronunciation
1 Listen to the phrases from Language spot. Notice how the words link together.
   1 come out of
   2 walk on
   3 head up
   4 turn right out of
2 Consonant or vowel? Choose the right word and complete the rule about linking.

When a word ends in a consonant / vowel and the next word begins with a consonant / vowel, we link the words together.

3 Practise saying these phrases, paying attention to the linking.
   1 Walk along the street.
   3 Come out of the market...
   4 Go past a fork in the road...
   5 Walk on past a bus stop...
   6 Head along this street and up a small hill.
   8 Turn left out of the TIC, head up a hill, and go past a park.

   5 theme parks
   a active b dazzling
   c designer
   d diverse e exhilarating f famous g luxurious h trendy
   i wild

3 Read the extracts from Tourist Information leaflets and websites. Check your answers to 1 and 2.

Liverpool, European Capital of Culture in 2008, is a vibrant modern city in the north-west of England with a rich maritime, cultural, and architectural history, and a reputation for musical and sporting excellence.

1 No trip to Liverpool is complete without a visit to either Anfield, home of the famous Liverpool Football Club, or Goodison Park, home of their rivals Everton.

2 Liverpool is arguably best known for The Beatles and you can find reminders of their unique legacy all over the city. The Cavern Club, where The Beatles gave their early performances, is well worth visiting. Don’t leave Liverpool without visiting The Beatles Museum or the childhood home of Paul McCartney.
In a city with such a wealth of musical achievement, you would expect a dazzling and diverse nightlife. And that's exactly what Liverpool offers. If you're looking for a good night out, then why not visit the waterfront Albert Dock complex where you can find bars, restaurants, and club venues, as well as the famous Tate Gallery Liverpool?

During the day, why not try some 'retail therapy'? Liverpool City Centre boasts some of the largest big name High Street stores in the country, and at Albert Dock you can find many trendy designer stores.

As you'd expect for a city of this size, there is a huge choice on offer. Whether you're after a luxurious four-poster bed in a modern international hotel or a bunk bed in a city centre hostel that's within walking distance of the bars and clubs after a wild night out, our Accommodation Booking Service can make a booking for you.

If you want to get out and about and be active, you could start at Pleasureland at Southport: it's exhilarating entertainment for all the family, and home of the Traumatizer roller coaster — a must for all thrill-seekers.

Find examples of these words and phrases and write out the recommendation expression in full.

1. without
2. why not
3. worth
4. you could

Copenhagen Right Now

The Copenhagen Right Now tourist information office is very popular indeed. Last year, more than 400,000 tourists visited the redesigned centre just opposite the main entrance to Tivoli Gardens.

Now, the tourist information centre has been awarded the annual prize for best branding by VisitDenmark, the official Danish board of tourism.

The prize is a recognition of the innovative and highly user-centred design concept. The idea was to build a hub for the information that visitors truly want when visiting Copenhagen — information about what is happening right now.

This information is not traditionally found in travel guides or agencies. For instance, Copenhagen Right Now guides the visitor to interesting spots, local venues, and other locations off the beaten track.

Tourists can discover such things as: where do the locals go for a good cup of coffee, or how does one see Copenhagen in three hours ...

A collection of display cases takes relevant information such as posters, flyers, and the like from the city’s fences, and is a reflection of what is happening in the city right now, from flea markets and hip hop concerts to ballets and operas.

A database of citizens of Copenhagen tells the visitors which shops, restaurants, bars, and parks the locals like and dislike, in order to let the visitor know what the ordinary Copenhageners finds cool and uncool.

Read more about Copenhagen Right Now at www.visitcopenhagen.dk or visit the centre at: 4A Vesterbrogade, Copenhagen V, Tel: +45 70 222 442.

1 What does a holiday representative for a tour operator do?

2 Have you ever seen a tour operator’s holiday rep at work meeting new arrivals at an airport or working with tourists in a hotel?

3 Have you ever been on a holiday where you were met by a holiday rep?
Take off

1. Look at the pictures. Choose one that shows something you have done. Tell your partner about it.

2. Which picture is not about a type of holiday rep?

3. Match each of the three texts with a picture. Tell your partner the connection.

1. Two years ago I went to Crete with two of my friends. It was a brilliant holiday. The weather was perfect and I loved the way of life, so after speaking to one of the reps I decided not to go back to Britain. And now I'm a rep! And here comes my group – bound for the airport and home.

2. This is a job for people who really love the outdoors. We're out in all weathers – putting up and taking down tents, cleaning, organizing activities. Mostly the weather's fine, but if it's rainy, it's hard work. And if it's windy, it's almost impossible!

3. I trained as a teacher, but I didn't want to go straight into a full-time job. So I came out here for a season. I organize games and activities, sports sessions – anything to keep the kids busy! I love working with them. The teaching? Maybe next year!

So you want to be a resort representative?

The work

Resort representatives are the first point of contact for holidaymakers at their destination. They represent the tour operator, and aim to ensure the success of the clients’ holidays.

Representatives meet each party of holidaymakers on their arrival at the airport and accompany them by coach to their accommodation. Usually, they hold a welcome meeting soon after arrival to give the holidaymakers information about resort facilities and attractions.

Resort representatives arrange regular times to meet holidaymakers to make announcements and deal with enquiries and problems. They keep an information board, and often a folder of useful information, up-to-date. They may also arrange, book, and sometimes accompany excursions and sightseeing trips and arrange car or ski hire.

In addition to this they need to be available at almost any time to give advice, solve problems, and deal with emergencies such as loss of passports or money, illness, or difficulties with accommodation.

The completion of paperwork is an important aspect of the job. This involves keeping records and writing reports of complaints and incidents such as illness.

Hours and environment

Representatives’ work is seasonal. Depending on the resort / country, holiday seasons may run from April onwards, October to January or January to April. Hours of work are variable. Representatives often work from early morning to late evening and at weekends and can be on call 24 hours a day.

A driving licence is usually needed, as representatives need to travel between hotels or other holiday accommodation and may be responsible for a wide area.

Skills and personal qualities

As a resort representative you should be self-confident, with a pleasant, cheerful, and outgoing nature.

It’s my job

Ameli Destivelle

Ameli works in Teigne in the French Alps. Here she gives us her advice for surviving your first season as a ski rep. Check you understand the headings for each tip. What do you think Ameli is going to say about each heading? Read on and find out.

Tips for surviving the season . . .

Flirting A key part of any ski season. Workers should flirt with each other a lot. But don’t forget: ‘the flirting stops when you start taking it seriously.’

Gossip Remember that gossip is an essential part of the ski rep’s world. Don’t expect to have ‘private’ life. You may imagine it’s just the two of you in on your little ‘secret’, but do you really know who saw you leave together last night?

Burn-out At the start of the season, you might want to ski all day and party all night. Doing this on holiday is hard enough, but try doing it when you’ve got to get up at 7.00 a.m. six days a week. Burn-out, often combined with flu, usually hits after New Year. Avoid this by pacing yourself – get an early night at least twice a week.

Day off There’s only one a week, so most staff use it wisely for either a big ski day or a big sleep day. The ski-hungry should check the forecast before getting drunk – this is your one chance to be first on the snow each week and you don’t want to wake up at 11.00 a.m. to find you’ve missed the best powder day of the season.

Changeover day There’s no real way to prepare you for this. If you’re working for a tour operator, there’s no doubt this is the worst day of the week. For reps, a twenty-hour day is not uncommon: flight delays, lost luggage, traffic jams, and lost ski-pas photos will all feature.

Customer care

Have you got the right attitude?

Every member of overseas staff is a representative of the organization and should always have a positive attitude to customers, acting in a professional manner at all times. There are certain rules you must respect. Decide which of these rules are in the 'always' section, and which are in the 'never' section.

1. Be loyal to the organization.
2. Respect the buildings and equipment where you work.
3. Criticize the organization to, or in front of, customers.
4. Be friendly and courteous with both colleagues and customers.
5. Argue or swear in front of customers.
6. Lose your temper at work.
7. Drink alcohol at work.
8. Separate your private and professional life as far as possible.
9. Respect the views of others.
10. Act in a way that could put anyone at risk.
11. Be honest and constructive.

1 It’s a good idea for tourists to find out about tipping before leaving home.
2 In India, you should tip a porter 10 rupees for carrying your bags.
3 If you are not sure how much to give, be generous.
4 Tipping is more or less the same in European countries.

3 Which piece of advice about tipping was the most surprising to you?

4 Which country in the article seems most like your country in terms of tipping?

How to tip in different countries

If you’re travelling overseas on holiday this summer, the preparations may already seem overwhelming – so the last thing you’re likely to worry about is tipping. You could regret that, however, once you’re sitting in the back of a taxi, wondering how much to tip, if at all.

In India, for example, you could have saved yourself a headache by finding out beforehand that you should round the taxi fare up to the next 10 rupees and give porters 10 rupees a bag; if the concierge got you your taxi on your way out to dinner, he would appreciate five rupees; and at dinner it’s appropriate to tip 10% of the bill, unless a service charge is included.

Tipping as an insult

Tipping in developing countries and Asia is perhaps the most confusing. Not only do customs vary hugely, but there are often ethical and cultural factors to consider. Keen to avoid an awkward situation, many tourists will be generous. However, this strategy might not be as acceptable as you would think.

In many cultures, for example particularly in Asian and Pacific countries such as Japan, tipping is actually perceived as an insult. You could even end up breaking the law – in Vietnam, tipping is illegal.

At the other end of the spectrum are countries where tipping is a way of life. The first word many travellers to Egypt learn is baksheesh (tip), and anyone dealing with or helping tourists will expect a small tip, say, 5 or 10%.

When travelling in Europe, it’s easy to assume tipping customs will be the same everywhere. But this isn’t necessarily so. Take restaurants. Some include service charges; others don’t.

Even if there is a service charge, you may be expected to tip a little extra. In Denmark, tipping isn’t expected in restaurants at all. In Belgium, Finland, Hungary, Iceland, Norway, Portugal, and Sweden, you should tip 10%, but only if there’s no service charge. In Austria, the Czech Republic, France, Germany, Greece, Holland, Italy, Luxembourg, Spain, and Ukraine, you should tip 5% to 10%, even if there’s a service charge.

Do your research

Researching tipping practices is relatively simple. There are …

Date: 2nd week of February
Name: TINAPAY FESTIVAL
Venue: Cuenca, Batangas, the Philippines

The Tinapay festival is an opportunity for the local people to give thanks to their patron saint, Our Lady of Peace and Good Voyage. In particular, the festival is an act of recognition of the wonderful breadmaking skills of the bakers of Cuenca. The main event is a unique parade where the biggest and longest breads of different shapes are paraded through the main streets of the town. And the festival is interactive – after the parade everyone gets a taste of the pastries and bread products.

Anybody looking for a truly heavenly experience will think that they have walked into paradise at the Chocolate Show in New York. The festival is a chocolate experience of global proportions with over 60 makes of chocolates on show. Chocolate-makers from all over the world take part, as do the visitors – chocolate tasting is mandatory!

A study in Tasmania has suggested that a new brand of food-lover exists. ‘Tasters’ are visitors who are interested in the food of a region as a part of their overall tourism experience. They are looking for the real taste of the area, for something representative and authentic, and they hope to find part of this in local food and wines.

Central Dalmatia is one of Croatia’s regions that takes greatest pride in the quality and diversity of the dishes served on its islands and along its coasts. Recently this richness has become much more than a source of pleasure for the locals. Now it is a significant ingredient in what the region offers tourists. In fact, food is so important for tourism in Dalmatia that local experts have produced the region’s first ever gastronomic guide.

The traveller's guide to Turkish food

1 Climate can influence the food of a region. What other influences can you think of?

2 What do you think are the main influences on Turkish food? Read the first two paragraphs to check.

   1 Because of the climate, you get different dishes at different times of the year.

1 2 Mezes are put in the centre of the table for everybody to try.

3 Turkish meals usually take a long time.

4 Lamb or chicken with tasty rice are typical mezes.

5 It is quite common for Turkish people to have their main course in one restaurant and their sweet course in another.

6 Turkish people don’t like sweet food.

4 What do you think 'Afiyet olsun' means?

TURKISH CUISINE

Turkish food is delicious, rich, and varied. Turkey is self-sufficient in food, and the range of vegetables and fruits available at all times of the year provides a constant source of fresh ingredients. Because of this, the taste and preparation of the wide range of dishes changes with the seasons. We never use tinned or frozen ingredients, unless it is to create a specific taste.

Turkish food has some of its origins in the lifestyle of the people that lived in this region during the time of the Sultans. Even today the evening meal is often the evening's entertainment. The equivalent of the western 'starter' is mezes, which consist of a huge selection of tasty dishes served in the centre of the table, including vegetables, meat, chicken, and seafood all prepared differently. Everyone tastes all of the dishes, which often consist of the same vegetable prepared in a number of very different ways. There are, for example, over 100 ways to prepare aubergines alone.

Eating at home in Turkey or in a traditional Turkish restaurant is never hurried, and the evening meal can last for many hours. The transition from starters to the main course is not always obvious, but typical main course dishes are skewers of succulent lamb or chicken, accompanied by tasty rice dishes.

Desserts are extremely sweet and the perfect complement to the strongly savoury aspect of Turkish food. The wide range of sweet dishes available is a good complement to the equally extensive range of mezes. Visitors to Turkey are often surprised by an unusual Turkish custom. When you eat out, it is not unusual to change restaurants at the dessert stage!

Writing

The food of my region

1. Work with a partner. You are going to write an introduction to the food of your country or region. Use the information you gathered for Find out. Add other information if necessary.

2. Think about what you can say about each of the following aspects of your local food.

   1. the influences
   2. the history
   3. the ingredients and flavours
   4. the importance for local culture and lifestyle
   5. the way of eating a meal
   6. the most representative dishes

3. Look at the article on Turkish food. How many paragraphs does it have? How many paragraphs will your article need?

4. When you have written a first draft for your article, give it to your teacher to correct.

5. While you are waiting to get your first draft back, think about how you can best present your article – as a web page, as a leaflet, etc.
Where in the world?

Toronto’s 360 Restaurant is one of Canada’s top restaurants – in more than one way! How is it a ‘top’ restaurant? And what’s different about its cellar?

360 The Restaurant at the CN Tower

360 The Restaurant at the CN Tower, one of Toronto’s finest and most popular restaurants, features unforgettable food combined with a magnificent revolving view of Toronto more than 350 metres below. 360 offers market-fresh cuisine, featuring regional ingredients to ensure an incomparable culinary experience.

All seats offer a breathtaking view. Some are located against the window and others are on a raised platform. All seats in the restaurant are on the rotating floor and receive spectacular 360 degree views. The floor takes 72 minutes to complete a full rotation.

At 351 metres, our cellar has received a Guinness World Record for the world’s highest wine cellar. Created to resemble a typical underground wine cellar, ours features precision climate and humidity controls, redwood racks, double cherry doors, a 9,000-bottle storage capacity, and a tasting table. Our ‘cellar in the sky’ has an award-winning wine selection of over 550 international and Canadian wines. 360 is the recipient of several awards and a wonderful place to celebrate any special occasion.

Elevation from ground level to the restaurant is complimentary with the purchase of a main course. Reservations are recommended and can be made online or by calling 416-362-5411.

Customer care
What do you say?

Most languages have common expressions which are said on certain occasions, e.g. in French, ‘bon appetit’ to guests at a dinner table, or ‘bon voyage’ to travellers before a trip. English often does not have simple equivalents to these expressions and sometimes borrows from other languages. So, before a meal the English will probably either say ‘bon appetit’ or possibly ‘enjoy your meal’ – or sometimes nothing at all.

In what situations are these other common expressions used?
1 ‘Safe journey’  2 ‘You’re welcome’  3 ‘Do start’  4 ‘Cheers’  5 ‘Have a nice day’

How to deal with complaints

1. Look at the four steps for dealing with customer complaints. What order do you think these steps normally come in?
   - Apologize
   - Ask questions
   - Listen
   - Take action

2. Listen to the head waiter giving a final training talk in a restaurant and check your answer.

3. Why should tourism professionals be ‘positive’ about getting complaints?

4. How can you ‘show the customer that you’re listening’?

5. When is it essential to ask the customer questions?

6. In the talk, three phrases for apologizing are given. What are they?

7. What do you think customers complain about most in restaurants?

Speaking

I’m very sorry

1. Work in threes. Student A, you are the waiter. Go to p.108. Student B, you are the customer. Go to p.110. Student C, you are the training manager. Use the evaluation form below to assess the waiter.

2. Act out the complaints. Change roles so that everybody is the waiter at least twice.

Take off

1 Look at the pictures of different tourist activities. What can you see in each picture?

2 Work in groups. Which pictures show people participating in rural tourism activities? Explain your answers to your partners.

3 Name three other activities that are typical of rural tourism.

4 Try to produce a simple definition of what rural tourism is. Share your definition with the rest of the class.

Listening

Local people and rural tourism

1 Say which activities in Take off 1 involve these people.

2 Listen to three of the people in 1 talking about rural tourism. Identify each speaker.

3 Which speaker
   1 has a formal tourism qualification?
   2 is carrying on the work their parents did?
   3 thinks that their area has a lot of different activities to offer rural tourism visitors?

4 Listen again and make notes about the way(s) each speaker or their region has benefited from rural tourism.

5 We didn’t hear one person speak. What do you think they would say about rural tourism? (Hint: think about how tourism will affect their job.)

Eduardo Barroso

Eduardo was born in a remote village in the Atacama Desert in the north of Chile. Life in the desert is hard, but rural tourism has given Eduardo and his family the chance to make a living from their surroundings. What is there to attract people to the desert? What is there to do there? Where do people stay? Read on and find out.

How did you decide to start up in rural tourism?
Life here is not easy, so many young people from the villages go to Santiago to find work. I wanted to be with my family, and one day my father read about rural tourism in Europe and decided to do the same with our farm.

Why do people visit the Atacama? What’s the attraction?
The landscape is the obvious attraction. For people from the city, there’s the shock of how big and empty the desert is. And for people from a temperate climate, there’s the surprise of how beautiful and varied it can be.

Is the desert varied?
It certainly isn’t just sand, which is the image in most people’s minds. In the Atacama, for example, you have volcanoes, salt lakes, geysers, canyons… It’s much more than just sand.

But what can you do here apart from look at the landscape?
My family have worked this land as farmers for many years, and we still do, so one of the attractions for our visitors is to experience our daily life. On the first morning, visitors help us around the farm, milking cows or putting the sheep out to graze. We have bees, as well.

You are very proud of the accommodation you have. Can you tell us why?
All of the buildings are made in traditional style and from local materials. Straw, mud, stone… everything is from the Patta Hoiri. That’s ‘Mother Earth’ in our local language. And all of the food we give visitors is based on ancient recipes and local ingredients. It might not be as sophisticated as in the best restaurants of Santiago, but it is tasty and very healthy. But perhaps the thing our guests enjoy most is that they dine with us. And after every meal there is always time for a tertulía – an after-dinner chat that often goes on long into the night. That’s when they really feel part of our world, and that’s what rural tourism is about for us.

Find out

1. Choose a country that offers rural tourism. Find out
   1. how long there has been rural tourism
   2. what sort of accommodation is available
   3. what types of activities visitors can do
   4. when the high and low seasons are
   5. if there are any professional associations of rural tourism.

2. Make a brief report of your findings.
Reading

Ask someone who has been there

Newspapers often have travel supplements and invite readers to answer questions other readers send in. Here, four readers answer a question by Alison.

1. Look at the pictures. What do you think Alison's question is about?
2. Read the question. Were you right?

Dear Fellow Travellers

The English Tourist Board uses crowns to grade serviced accommodation and keys for self-catering. Does anybody know what systems are used for rural accommodation in other places?

Alison, Penrith

Dear Alison

We’ve just got back from New Zealand. They use a system called Qualmark, which operates on a 1- to 5-star scale. One star means ‘Acceptable’. In practice, this means it meets your basic needs and is clean and comfortable. We stayed in a lot of three-star places and they were good.

Dave & Jane Walcott, Weston-super-Mare

Dear Alison

We often go to the Isle of Man. There they use a diamond to grade guest house accommodation. As it says on the official government web page (www.gov.im/tourism/travel/accommodation/isle-of-man-hotels.aspx), one diamond means you’ll get ‘Clean and comfortable accommodation. Offering a full cooked or continental breakfast. Acceptable level of quality and helpful service’.

At the top end of the range, five diamonds means ‘An excellent overall level of quality. Excellent interior design, high quality furniture, and an excellent quality bed. Breakfast offering wide choice of high quality fresh ingredients. Excellent levels of customer care.’

Dear Alison

Here in Romania, rural accommodation in guest houses is classified in accordance with the law. The system goes from one daisy to five daisies. In the past we used stars (and our hotels here still do), but recently we chose daisies for guest houses in the country because it is a flower that grows all over Romania.

Kindest regards

Dear Alison

Here in Japan we have no accommodation grading system.

Motoko, Tokyo

Dear Alison

In Asturias in the north of Spain, we use a symbol we call the ‘trisquel’ for grading our ‘casas de aldea’ (village houses). This is a traditional Celtic symbol, and you can see it carved in many old buildings in our region. The system goes from one to three ‘trisqueles’. To get three, the accommodation has to comply with very high standards of quality and functionality. For example, the owner must be in the village all the time, there should be good access for disabled travellers, the furniture and decorations should be traditional in style and materials, there should be a children’s play area, and so on.

Listening

Checking in at a campsite

1 Listen to two situations in which campers check in to a campsite. Which camper a has made a previous reservation?
   b has a vehicle?
   c is staying for less than a week?
   d has children?
   e only needs one pitch?

2 Look at the campsite symbols. Do you know what they mean? Which ones correspond to which situation in 1?

[Images of campsite symbols]

3 Listen again and complete the sentences.
   1 And it’s ______________________ for a motorhome and a ________ ________ for a family tent.
   2 Could you ______________________ for a moment?
   3 Will you be using an ________ ________?
   4 OK. ________________ ________________ here, please?
   5 We’ve got ________________ Friday.
   6 What were you ________________?

Pronunciation

1 Listen to these phrases from situation 1. Note how the words in italics in each phrase are stressed.
   Receptionist: Here you are. Two adults, two children, two weeks. And it’s one pitch for a motorhome, and a second pitch for a family tent.
   Camper 1: Two pitches, that’s right. But it’s not a family tent. It’s a small tent – for the children.
   Receptionist: Oh. I’ll just change it. There you are. One motorhome and one small tent.

2 Which words are stressed in order to confirm information that is right, and which are stressed to correct information that is wrong?

3 Now look at these phrases from situation 2. Decide which word will be stressed in each of the phrases underlined, then listen and check.
   Camper 2: There are four of us. We’ve got tents.
   Receptionist: Are they family tents?
   Camper 2: No, no. They’re small tents. They’re mountain tents.
   Receptionist: And is that four tents?
   Camper 2: No, only two.
   Receptionist: Have you got a car?
   Camper 2: No, we’ve got bikes.
   Receptionist: Mottorides?
   Camper: No, they’re normal bikes. You know, pedal bikes.

Speaking

Receiving campers

1 Work in pairs. Student A, you are the receptionist. Go to p.110. Student B, you are the camper. Go to p.115. Act out the situation. Use the phrases in Listening, and remember to stress any important words.

2 Now change roles and act out the second situation.

3 If you want to know how good your pronunciation is, record one of the two situations and give it to your teacher to assess.
Rural tourism is a segment of the total tourist industry which is particularly important in Hungary, a country with no spectacular natural attractions, without seaside, high mountains, rainforest, or herds of exotic animals.

Reading

Welcome!

1 Work with a partner. Look at the photos of life in rural Vietnam.

1 Use the vocabulary of rural tourism resources to describe what is happening in each photo.

2 Can you think of any other rural tourism activities that you might find in Vietnam?

2 Read the article welcoming tourists and look at the map.

1 Identify the provinces of Vinh Long, Quang Nam, and Bac Ninh on the map.

2 Match the photos with the corresponding provinces.

Welcome to rural Vietnam

Welcome to a corner of Asia where you will find a lifestyle that goes back for centuries. Fishing on the Mekong Delta, farming in Central Vietnam, or crafts in Bac Ninh Province—whatever your own interest, we are sure you will find something to delight you in rural Vietnam.

Vinh Long Province

Located between the Tien and Hau rivers, the fertile lands of Vinh Long nourish thousands of fruit orchards, while the countless small islands provide ideal conditions for ecotourism and observing wildlife. In addition, you will be able to observe the centuries-old activities of Southern Vietnam, such as processing rice paper and traditional Vietnamese cooking.

Especially interesting in Vinh Long is the opportunity to stay overnight in local residents’ homes. There is a small but growing number of private homes that offer home stays. At the moment they provide accommodation and entertainment for up to 150 tourists per night.

2 Which of the resources in 1 can be classified as a activities that show tourists local culture?
   b activities that show tourists the local natural environment?
   c something for tourist to watch?
   d something for tourists to do?

3 Think of two more resources for each category in 2.

4 Which of the resources can you find in your country?

5 Which of the resources have you had any experience of?
delight (v) to give sb great pleasure nourish (v) to give sb / sth the right kind of food so that he / she / it can grow and be healthy silkworm (n) a caterpillar (a small creature like a worm with legs) that produces silk thread toil (v) to work very hard and / or for a long time trade (n) the activity of buying and selling or of exchanging goods or services between people or countries

3 Which of the provinces is best for visitors who want to 1 do things during their stay in rural Vietnam?
2 get as close as possible to ordinary Vietnamese people?
3 buy authentic souvenirs of rural Vietnamese products?
4 Which area of Vietnam seems the most exciting to you? Tell your partner why.
5 Where would you find a text like this?

Writing

Welcome – Bienvenue – Willkommen

With so many places to visit, a Welcome text is important for rural areas. Work with a partner. You are going to write a Welcome text.

1 With your partner, make notes.
   1 Which elements of rural tourism are typical of your area?
   2 Which adjectives will help you to describe your region and make it sound unique?
   3 Which images can you use to illustrate your text?

2 Work on your own. Write your text. When you have finished, give it to your partner to read.

3 Work together. Use the best of your individual texts to produce the best Welcome text you can. Did you use adjectives to make the region sound special?

Bac Ninh Province

The homeland of Quan Ho art has many traditional trade villages. In Xuan Lai village you can find excellent bamboo products, especially from black bamboo, while Phu Lang is famous for its pottery. Thousands of ancient pots have been found here, and even today there are about 300 families in the village doing pottery work.

Tho Ha is famous for pottery, but nowadays it has also started to produce wine. Another village that is well-known for traditional wines is Van, on the bank of the Cau River.

The villagers here are happy to let visitors photograph their wine being made, and to try it or to buy it, but the brewing process itself is a secret.

Finally, Da Hoi is a must. This 400-year-old trade village is famous for its traditional silk cloth, and women there still raise silkworms and weave fabulous fabrics that they sell.

Quang Nam Province

For visitors who want to be really active in their holidays, we recommend a visit to one of the vegetable farming villages near the town of Hoi An in the central province of Quang Nam. Here for a day you can toil shoulder to shoulder with a Vietnamese farmer. Hosts and guests work the land, planting rice or collecting vegetables that they sell in the local markets. For lunch you get to eat colocynth (similar to a bitter apple) and tom huu, which is a traditional dish made of vegetables.
Customer care

Encouraging customers to be sensitive to the environment

There is a piece of advice that responsible tourism organizations often give to travellers: 'Take only photographs; leave only footprints.

1 What are they encouraging their customers not to leave, and not to take?

The Countryside Code encourages tourists to be responsible to the rural environment in the UK. The key points are
- Be safe, plan ahead, and follow any signs.
- Leave gates and property as you find them.
- Protect plants and animals and take your litter home.
- Keep dogs under close control.
- Consider other people.

2 Would you change anything for a countryside code for the rural environment in your country?

3 What points would you include for a code for the urban environment in your country?

Vocabulary

Weather words

1 Match the weather terms a–l with pictures 1–12.
   a clear and bright  g light winds b cloudy           h overcast
   c heavy rain      i storms
   d heavy showers   j strong winds e light rain      k sunny intervals
   f light showers   l thundery showers

2 What other weather words can you add?

3 Which words in 1 are typical of (a) good and (b) bad weather?

4 Thundery is an adjective. The noun is thunder. What are the adjectives for 1 fog?  3 mist?  5 storms?
   2 rain? 4 showers? 6 wind?

5 Make a web for all your weather terms similar to the web you made for food vocabulary in Unit 5. Put the words Weather forecast in the centre of your web.

6 What is the weather like in your region in the spring, summer, and autumn?

Listening

Forecasting the weather

In rural areas, visitors need to know what the weather will be like so that they can plan what to do.

1 Listen to a rural accommodation owner in Cornwall, England. She is telling a guest about the weather. What is the weather forecast for (a) tomorrow and (b) Thursday?

2 What is the weather like at the time they are speaking?

3 Why is tomorrow afternoon going to be different from today?

4 Why does the owner tell the visitor not to worry?
Language spot

Making predictions

1. Listen to the dialogue in Listening again and complete the phrases.
   1. Do you know what the weather tomorrow?
   2. (I think) today.
   3. ... then again in the afternoon.
   4. I think a few thundery storms.
   5. Will it all week?
   6. They said rain on Thursday.

2. Which two verbs forms can you use when you are giving information about the weather? Which is the more common of the two forms?
   1. It'll be like today or it'll probably be like today.
   2. I think it'll rain on Thursday or it's going to rain on Thursday.

Go to Grammar reference p.122

Speaking

Giving information about the weather

1. Work in pairs. Student A, go to p.109. Use the information to give the camper a weather forecast for the next four days. Student B, you are the camper.

   Example:
   Camper: Excuse me. Do you know what the weather will be like for the next few days?
   Receptionist: Well, for tomorrow I think it’ll ...

2. When you have finished, change roles. Student A, you are the camper. Student B, go to p.112. Use the information to give the weather forecast.

Checklist

Assess your progress in this unit. Tick (√) the statements which are true.

- I can understand people talking about what rural tourism is

Use full names of all authors.

Think about who you are writing the report for.

Think about the aims of the report. Note the use of to (infinitive of purpose) at the start.

Use numbers and bullet points for sub-lists. Note the use of the Passive - it makes the report sound more formal.

ACKNOWLEDGE ALL SOURCES.
Details

1 Online Tourist Office

The Online Tourist Office was visually very attractive. It was very easy to click through to a wide range of useful information. In particular there were links to: Accommodation finder, Entertainment, Events, See and do, Special offers, and Travel. Text in all these sections was comprehensive without being too long. Photographs and design features were very effective. We particularly liked the ‘maps’ section and the section on ‘information on travel’, which gave details of discount passes.

2 Multimedia facilities

There were a number of useful multimedia features:

- e-cards — allows you to send electronic postcards from Dublin to your friends
- podcasts — free downloads providing audio-guides to various parts of Dublin
- screensavers — free download images of Dublin for your computer screensaver
- video — Dublin Tourism’s promotional DVD with backing track, which can be watched before the visitor arrives, or when the tourist is deciding where to go
- webcam — gives real-time live footage of Dublin city centre, and can be used, for example, to watch the St Patrick’s Day Parade wherever you are in the world.

All these features are not only useful for the visitor, but are also excellent ways of promoting Dublin as a destination.

3 Facilities at the TIC

No information was found about interactive and multimedia facilities at the central Dublin Tourist Information Centre. An email has been sent requesting this information, but no reply has been received.

Follow-up work

Prepare proposals for how some of the Dublin features might be included in our own regional tourist information services.

Mode of presentation

Written report to be emailed to relevant people. Possibility for PowerPoint presentation using web slides.

Numbering the paragraphs of the ‘detailed report’ section, and using bullet points where appropriate, helps make the report clearer.

Give your own opinion of things you liked or didn’t like.

3 Here are some informal expressions used by the report writers when they were preparing the report. Find their more formal equivalents in the text.

1 The first thing we’re going to do is collect as much information as possible.

2 We thought these websites were great.

3 The Tourist Information Centres didn’t seem to be very easy to use.

4 What’s good is that they get all the information in but still keep it short.

5 I think the next thing to do is make some suggestions for our local office.

4 What is the main tense used in the report? Find examples of the tense in both active and passive voice.

5 Prepare a similar report on one of the following:

- Online and multimedia tourist information in your region
- Hotel facilities for disabled people in an area of your choice
- Specialized holidays for the elderly
- Feedback from customers
- A research subject of your own choice related to tourism

It’s OK to identify areas you haven’t been able to find out about.

Put report in context of further work.

Think about how you will present the report. Try to think of interesting ways.
2 Information leaflet

1 Read the leaflet and find this information.
   1 time from airport to centre
   2 the location of the Hong Kong Tourism Office
   3 a traditional lunch dish
   4 the location of two night markets
   5 a place for a good view of the city
   6 a fashionable place for dinner
   7 opening hours of the temple

2 Find examples of these standard features for an information leaflet, and answer the questions.
   1 Clear main heading. Does it indicate what the leaflet is about?
   2 Strapline (or sub-heading) under the main heading. Is it more or less 'promotional' than the rest of the leaflet?
   3 Section headings. Are they easy to see and do they indicate the content of the section?
   4 Further information sources. What sources of information are given?

3 The grammar used in the leaflet is quite simple, for example, the Present Simple tense is used a lot (e.g. Hong Kong consists of two parts).
   1 Find an example of the Present Simple in each section.
   2 Find three examples of can + infinitive.
   3 Find three examples of imperatives.
   4 Write a similar leaflet for '48 hours in [your city or a place you know well].'

Get your bearings
Hong Kong consists of two parts: Hong Kong Island and Kowloon, separated by Victoria Harbour. Both parts have modern hotels, shopping malls, and restaurants, but Kowloon has the best view - the steel towers of Hong Kong Island silhouetted against the wooded slopes of Victoria Peak. The two parts are linked by an efficient public rail system, road tunnels, and the famous Star Ferry.

Check in
Accommodation in Hong Kong can be expensive, with luxury hotels such as the Landmark Mandarin Oriental (00 852 2132 0188; www.mandarinoriental.com) and the famous Peninsula Hotel (www.peninsula.com). The Hong Kong Tourism Office in the Star Ferry Terminal Building (00 852 2508 1234; www.discoverhongkong.com) can help with other options.

Take a walk
The Dragon's Back, a ridge along the south-eastern side of Hong Kong Island, is an easy and popular hiking trail. The trek ends in the little fishing village of Shek O with its sandy beach and alfresco restaurants. Take the bus back to the city centre.

Lunch on the run
Dim sum is a Chinese institution. One of the oldest and best places to go is the Luk Yu Tea House on Stanley Street. The customers are mostly Chinese and you can watch the old women playing mah-jong.

Window shopping
Modern shopping malls are all over the city, or you can look for antiques at Hollywood Road. And of course there are the fabulous night markets in Kowloon: Temple Street and Ladies' Market in Mong Kok.

Take a view
The Peak Tram (00 852 2522 0922; www.thepeak.com.hk) makes a near vertical climb from Garden Road to the top of Victoria Peak for an amazing view across the city.

Dinner with the locals
Most locals head for the buzzing restaurants and bars on the streets of SoHo, or there are the Italian, Chinese, and Turkish eateries of Knutsford Terrace in Kowloon. The hottest place at the moment is Opia in the Jia Hotel (00 852 3196 9000; www.jiahongkong.com).

Sunday morning: go to the temple
A good place to feel the religious atmosphere and breathe in the incense smoke is Man Mo Temple on Hollywood Road, open daily from 8.00 a.m. to 6.00 p.m.

Change of plans for Wednesday, I'm afraid. Forecasting some really stormy weather - the tail of Hurricane Rita - tropical rain, high winds, waves & v. rough seas. Not good weather for camping. Especially bad for trips in glass-bottomed boats and up Teide mountain.

Need to re-schedule both trips. Will come across tomorrow morning and do this with you. Meanwhile get a notice out cancelling. Offer alternative of usual coach to Puerto de la Cruz for shopping.

Best
Rosa
P.S. And warn all to prepare tents, etc. for wind.

BAD WEATHER WARNING & CHANGE OF PLANS

We have just received a warning for unexpected storms for Wednesday and Thursday. The storms are the remains of Hurricane Rita and for the Canary Islands they will mean high winds and very rough seas.

Because of this, and with your safety and security in mind, we have had to cancel

• all sea trips, including coastal cruises & glass-bottomed boats
• the Teide mountain summit trip

We will be putting on coaches to Puerto de la Cruz for shopping & sightseeing on both days as an alternative activity. We will re-schedule both the sea trips and the Teide summit as soon as the weather calms down.

Please sign the list below if you are affected by these cancellations and wish to go to Puerto de la Cruz. Please contact us at the office if you have any questions.

Many thanks for your understanding.

You're not going to believe it. A plague of jellyfish because the sea is very warm this year. It's no joke. 50 people treated for stings last week. Obviously the planned beach day for next Thursday no longer a good idea, especially for families. In fact, we need to think about re-scheduling all beach days for rest of summer.

Suggest we offer trip to local theme park - Aqualandia or whatever it's called. Good for families, but we need them to reserve in advance through the office so that we can block-book entry tickets. For non-families suggest a trip to inland area - wine-growing, wine tasting, village culture, etc. Will also need reservations. Can you get a notice up ASAP? Will ring you.

Dear Hotelwork4U

I am writing to apply for the job of hotel receptionist, reference Mal04 - 10-07.

As you will see from my CV, although I am relatively young, I have already got basic experience in jobs related to the hotel sector. In particular, I would like to point out the front office experience I gained through my work placement in a hotel reception in Lugo, the city where I study. I also did a three-month summer job in France, where I worked with adults and teenagers as an entertainer. Because of this, I think that my communication and organizational skills are good.

My mother tongue is Spanish, but I have been studying English for ten years now, first at secondary school, and now at the Escuela Universitaria de Turismo, where I am in my final year. I am confident that I can carry out all my duties in English, and I also speak good French.

I am a positive, energetic person with an open nature. I enjoy being with clients and holidaymakers, and I think it is fair to say that I am hard-working and adaptable. I have been abroad several times, so I am not worried about working and living abroad. I regularly go walking, and I enjoy sports activities in general.

I am available for interview at any time after February 25.

Yours sincerely

Marta Elena Gutiérrez Alvarez

5 Reporting incidents

Incidents that happen to tourists on holiday with your company or in your hotel must be reported in the incident log.

1 Think of three typical incidents that can happen to a tourist during a package holiday. Tell your partner what they are. Did you think of the same incidents?

2 Look at the page from the log for the Hotel Ozukara in Turkey.

1 What had happened to the guests affected by the incident?
2 When and where did the incident take place?
3 How many people did the incident involve?
4 What action was taken to solve the problem?
5 Who reported the incident for the tour operator?
6 Whose fault was the incident?

3 Look at the notes from an incident at the Red Sea Paradise hotel. Use the notes to prepare an entry in an incident log like the one from 2.

Turkish Meditour Incident log

Resort: Bodrum

Hotel: Ozukara (3-star)

Incident reported by: Jacqueline Dakota

Type of incident: Overbooking

Date of incident: 16th July

Details of incident:

On arrival at the hotel with Group 02U-001508, I went to the hotel reception to book the group in. The hotel arrivals list and the transfer list did not coincide. Three couples (the Coopers, the Fergusons, & the McKittericks) were without rooms. Two clients (Mr Copperthwaite & Mr Spencer) had been put into a twin despite having paid the supplement for single rooms.

The hotel offered alternative rooms in the company’s 4-star Kassandra, a sister hotel, 5 km further south. Two couples (the Coopers & the Fergusons) accepted this, but the McKittericks refused. They claimed that the alternative hotel was too far from Bodrum. Both single-room clients requested upgrading to the Kassandra.

After a brief negotiation, I opted to put Mr Copperthwaite & Mr Spencer into the Kassandra and gave the room that had been freed to the McKittericks, who accepted it.

The next morning the hotel staff and I compared registration lists. We had failed to update our list. The hotel had responded correctly to the list we had initially sent.

Signed

J Dakota

Resort: Elphiestone

Hotel: Red Sea Paradise

Date of incident: 27th August

Type: damage to guests’ personal effects

Clients: Mr Bob Moorland & Mrs Freda Moorland

Guests arrived with group – all normal. Group registration done without problems & guests all went up to allocated rooms. 20 mins later Moorlands rang office & asked me to go to room. Once in room, they showed me suitcase with evident damage – handle broken, lock also. Moorlands explained had been obliged to break lock to access suitcase. Insisted that case OK at airport. Claimed damage done in transfer.

Am unable to demonstrate that Moorlands’ case was in perfect condition at airport, so opted to accept responsibility for damage. Offered to get damage repaired at resort. Moorlands refused offer & requested new case once back in UK. Have accepted and will file incident thru’ standard company insurance.

Trends in visitor attractions

1 What changes have there been in the four categories of attractions in the last thirty years? Think about when your parents were the age that you are now.

2 Read the article. Did you identify any of the changes mentioned? What other trends are described?

3 Find at least one example of each of the four categories of types of visitor attraction.

4 Find examples of particular ways in which attractions are made more interesting and exciting.

Inside tourism: the changing face of the ‘attractions industry’

As the wishes and tastes of tourists and visitors change, tourist attractions have to change as well. In the last twenty or thirty years, there have been some significant developments.

Natural attractions like sandy beaches and mountains cannot change very much, but nevertheless there have been developments, in particular a concern to preserve the environment and to make any buildings fit into the natural context.

Perhaps the greatest changes have been in man-made attractions like museums and historic sites, which have become more interesting and entertaining places to visit, while still maintaining their role of teaching visitors about the past. In many of them, the aim is not just to display the past, but to take visitors into the past in an interactive way. Some have been converted into ‘living museums’ where actors in costumes meet the public and play the roles of characters from the past. In others, history is made vivid and exciting through the use of realistic waxworks, animatronic models, sounds, and even smells, to conjure up a sense of the past.

Traditional festivals by definition do not change very much, but there has been a trend to increase the number of special events and festivals as cities realise that holding a music festival or an arts event is a good way of attracting tourists.

Entertainment and leisure facilities are always having to change. In the developed world, the simple rectangular swimming pool, for example, is no longer enough—it has to be a water park, with flumes, chutes, splash zones, and wave machines.

The tourist is always looking for new attractions, and the ‘attractions industry’ has to keep on changing.
Vocabulary

Architectural features

1 Match the pictures of architectural features with the glossary of terms.

Glossary

arch curved structure with straight sides, often supporting a bridge or the roof of a large building column tall, solid vertical post made of stone, supporting or decorating a building or standing alone dome round roof on a building façade the front wall of a large building that you see from the outside minaret tall, thin tower, usually forming part of a mosque obelisk a tall pointed stone column with four sides, put up in memory of a person or an event portal a large impressive door or entrance spire tall, pointed tower on the top of a church tower tall, narrow building, or part of a building, either square or round vaulted ceiling decorated roof made from a series of arches joined together

2 In which type of building would you find them (e.g. cathedral, mosque)?

3 Can you think of any famous buildings that have these features?

4 Add one of these words to the word groups listed below.

construct granite statue long show alongside

1 high, wide, thick, ________
2 underneath, in front of, ________
3 depict, represent, ________
4 build, erect, ________
5 marble, stone, ________
6 carving, sculpture, ________

Reading

Two top Paris attractions

Read the descriptions of two famous buildings in Paris. Each description has four sections. Which section describes the use and function of the building?

1 describes when and why it was built?

3 gives some detailed description?

4 gives a general physical description?

Arc de Triomphe

a The Arc de Triomphe was erected in the early 19th century as a tribute to the French army of Napoleon. It is built of marble.

b The arch is over 50 metres high, 45 metres wide, and 22 metres thick.

c There are four sculptures carved on the façade. The most famous is La Marseillaise. It depicts the departure of the volunteers encouraged by a winged figure representing France.

d The arch is used for special processions. Underneath the arch is the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier. A flame is lit every evening at 6.30 p.m.
Notre-Dame cathedral

a. The cathedral of Notre-Dame was started by Bishop de Sully in 1163 and work continued for nearly 200 years. It was completed in 1345. The cathedral is dedicated to the Virgin Mary and stands in the centre of Paris on the Île-de-la-Cité.

b. It is undoubtedly the finest example of French gothic architecture. The twin towers are a famous feature of the Paris skyline, and are 69 metres high. The spire, which was added in the 19th century, is 90 metres high.

c. The façade is the most striking part of the building. The three portals are adorned with remarkable stone sculptures, including the Last Judgement. The rose window in the façade was built over 700 years ago and is magnificent.

d. The cathedral is still used for regular church services as well as special occasions. The vast interior can accommodate 9,000 people. French road distances are established from the ‘0 km’ point located on the square in front of the cathedral entrance.

The Passive

1. Find a form of these verbs in the descriptions in Reading.
   1. erect 4. use 7. continue 10. establish
   2. build 5. light 8. stand
   3. depict 6. start 9. adorn

   a. Which are Present tenses and which are Past tenses?
   b. Which are Passive and which are Active?
   c. Find other examples of Passive and Active verbs

2. Is the Passive used more than the Active because
   1. descriptions like this are more formal?
   2. we are thinking about what is done to the thing we are interested in, not about what it does?
   3. sometimes we don’t know who or what does the action (i.e. who is the ‘agent’)?
   4. it makes the text more interesting?

3. Which preposition (by, of, for) is used to describe
   1. the person (or thing) who did it?
   2. the reason or function?
   3. the material used?

4. Write descriptions using these notes.

      • In Trafalgar Square – constructed 1829–1841 – commemorate Battle of Trafalgar 1805
      • Column = 56 m; statue of Nelson 5.5 m. Granite
      • Base: 4 giant bronze lions (sculptor = Landseer) – represent strength of British Empire
      • A place to meet – celebrating New Year

   b. Buckingham Palace, London
      • Originally a country house for Duke of Buckingham – converted to palace 1825 (architect = Nash)
      • Official royal residence 1837–present
      • Façade redesigned 1913 – 429 rooms (78 bathrooms) – employs 335 staff
      • Buckingham Palace open to public August and September. Also art gallery

Festa del Redentore

Introduction

↑ The Festa del Redentore – the Festival of the Redeemer – is a high point of the Venice summer. Thanks to a spectacular firework display, the Redentore is a major tourist attraction.

History

From 1575–77, Venice was hit by a terrible plague which killed more than a third of the city's inhabitants. In 1576, the city's leader, the Doge, promised to erect a church dedicated to the Redeemer, in return for help in ending the plague. On July 13, 1577, the plague was declared over, and work began to construct the church. It was also decided that Venice would forever give thanks on the third Sunday of July.

Different cultures, different responses

1. How can the people who work at tourist attractions adapt to meet the cultural differences of certain nationalities, for example, Japan or the Middle East?

2. Read the case study to find out what one tourist attraction has done.

Case study: Japanese visitors to the home of Beatrix Potter in north-west England.

Beatrix Potter, who wrote children’s books about characters such as Peter Rabbit and Jemima Puddleduck, is very popular in Japan, especially since the release of the film Miss Potter in 2007. Her home, Hill Top Cottage, is now owned by the National Trust and Japanese tourists make up a third of all visitors. The local tourist industry prepares tourism employees in a number of ways.

Writing
Three festivals

1. Work in groups of three. Student A, go to p.111. Student B, go to p.112. Student C, go to p.117. Write a description of your festival from the notes.

2. When you have finished, look at each other’s descriptions and suggest any corrections or improvements.

3. In your groups, think of two festivals (or ceremonies or parades) from your country. Write a description of them.

What happens
From early on the Saturday, boats are decorated with flowers, lanterns, and balloons. St Mark’s lagoon fills with as many as two thousand boats, their occupants eating and drinking as they wait for the traditional spectacular display of fireworks. (Arrangements can easily be made through your hotel for an evening with dinner on a boat.) At around 11.30 p.m., the display begins and the lagoon becomes one of the most atmospheric stages in the world, fireworks illuminating the spires, domes, and bell towers of the city.

On Sunday, a pontoon of decorated gondolas and other boats is strung across the Giudecca canal to allow the faithful to walk to the church of the Redentore. The climax of the festival is the mass held in the presence of the Patriarch of Venice, a reminder that the Festa has a serious side.

Where in the world?
Read about Alcatraz in San Francisco.
1 What different functions has Alcatraz had in its history?
2 Why do tourists go there?
3 Who can you listen to on the audio-tour?

Alcatraz
‘You are entitled to food, clothing, shelter, and medical attention. Anything else you get is a privilege.’ (Alcatraz Prison Rules and Regulations no. 5, 1934)

This rule was one of the realities of life inside the walls of the US Federal Penitentiary, Alcatraz Island. The subject of many movies and books, Alcatraz has become a symbol of America's dark side. From fiction rather than fact, we have stories of the prison and some of the men who lived in its cells - Al ‘Scarface’ Capone and Robert Stroud, the ‘Birdman of Alcatraz’, for example. The truth of Alcatraz has often been overlooked, lost in the fog of its myths.

Form your own opinions, and explore the island's mysteries. For it does indeed have a mysterious presence, one shared by the uses to which society has put it. This island in the heart of San Francisco Bay, just two kilometres from the sights and sounds of the world's most beautiful cities, has been used as a fort, a lighthouse, and a prison. Today, it is a Golden Gate National Recreation Area, and the National Park Service is working to make it accessible to visitors, preserve its buildings, protect its birds and other wildlife, and interpret its history.

Take the cell house audio-tour and hear some of the officers and inmates talking about their experience on 'The Rock'.

Speaking

Bringing attractions to life

Work in groups.

1. Choose the two visitor attractions from Find out which had the lowest excitement/entertainment rating. Decide how they could be made more exciting and entertaining, and ‘brought alive’—for example, by using actors, animatronics, waxworks, audio-tours, and so on.

2. Show your ideas to another group.

Checklist

- I can talk about visitor attractions in general
- I can write descriptions of built attractions
- I can describe festivals and events
- I can discuss different ways of bringing attractions to life

Next stop

1. Have you ever been on a coach tour or guided tour that you have either really enjoyed or really disliked? Where was it? What did you see?

2. What made the tour successful/unsuccesful?

3. What problems do you think can occur on a guided tour, either on a coach or another form of transport?
8 On tour

Take off

1 What do you know about the three places in the pictures?
2 Can you find them on a map of the world?
3 Why do you think tourists would visit them? What types of tours might they go on – for example, cruises, walking tours, museum visits?

Reading

Three tours

1 Read about the three tours. In groups, discuss the questions.
Which of the tours involve
1 a private performance?
2 visiting ancient ruins?
3 travelling on a boat?
4 accommodation in the city centre?
5 seeing rare animals in their natural habitat?
6 an internal flight?
7 talks by an expert?

Libya – Lost cities of the Greek and Roman Empires

- Starting from Tripoli, ancient city and capital of Libya. Nearby is Leptis, probably the best preserved Roman city in the Mediterranean world.
- Fly east to the less often visited region of Cyrenaica, a land of beautiful green hills running down to the crystal turquoise waters of the Mediterranean.
- Discover the ancient port of Apollonia, an enchanting city now partly sunk beneath the sea which forms a dazzling backdrop to its theatre and the columns of its Byzantine churches.
- Visit the city of Cyrene, founded in the 7th century BC and for centuries the most important Greek city in North Africa – its stunning temple of Zeus is larger than the Parthenon in Athens.
- Extra tour to the Sahara Desert.

Ecology of Ecuador – The enchanted islands of the Galapagos

- A special tour accompanied by guest lecturer, Dr Michael Brooke, Curator of Birds, Cambridge University Museum of Zoology.
- Travel in a specially modified cruiser, adapted for the Galapagos. All cabins are air-conditioned outside cabins with private toilet / shower room.
- The tour begins with a visit to colonial Quito, plus a tour of the Avenue of Volcanoes, among stunning scenery.
- The South American archipelago of the Galapagos Islands is home to an amazing variety of wildlife – giant tortoises, marine iguanas, and many more.
- Optional tour of the Ecuadorian Amazon – a journey to another world.
2 Match these notes written by the tour operator with the correct tour. In each case, decide what the notes mean.

1
- Book local guide for city panoramic tour.
- Lecture in museum - English language?
- Hotel facilities
- Double-check availability of HB

2
- Check first-class cabin for guest lecturer.
- Staff on cruiser - English-speaking?
- Local guide for tour of volcanoes.
- Land-based travel? Jeeps?

3 Which tourism professionals will be employed on the tours?

Example
- A guide at the museum
- Airport arrival - meet and greet?
- Book coach transfers (plus local guide)
- Local guides at various sites?
- Check accommodation arrangements for the Sahara tour - tents?

4 Which tour would you most like to work on? What job would you like to do on the tour? Why?

St Petersburg - City of music

- Tour to one of the world’s most magical cities, including a number of concerts in grand settings (e.g. Sheremetev Palace, where students of the St Petersburg Music Conservatory will perform works by Tchaikovsky exclusively for our group).
- Programme covers all the principle sights of Peter the Great’s magnificient city, from the Hermitage, with its priceless Scythian gold collection, to the Catherine Palace at Pushkin, with its recently-restored Amber Room.
- We will also have the services of Humphrey Burton, one of Britain’s most distinguished television directors and commentators to help bring out the musical magic.
- We stay throughout at the Dostoyevsky Hotel in the heart of St Petersburg.

Listening

From tour guide to tour manager

1 🎧 Tourism trainees do not usually find a job as tour manager as their first job. Listen to Gina Meadows describe what she did before she became a tour manager. Note down the training she did and any jobs she had.

2 🎧 Listen again and write T (true) or F (false).

1 Gina always wanted to work in tourism.
2 The qualification she got is recognized in many European countries.
3 She got the job she wanted immediately.
4 Her experience of travelling was more important than the qualification.
5 She spent two years working as a tour guide before becoming a tour manager.
6 She likes her job.
It's my job

Read about Lucy Tovchikh from Ukraine.

1. What does Lucy like/dislike about her job?
2. How does she try to make her tours interesting?
3. What other job does she do?
4. Which of her special tours would you choose to go on?

Find out

What job opportunities are these for tour guides in your area (on coach tours, cruise ships, or at visitor attractions)?

What qualifications and experience do the companies require?

What training do they give—for example, on giving commentaries and presentations, health and safety, dealing with problems?

Ludmila (Lucy) Tovchikh

How long have you been working as a tour guide?
For more than ten years.

What does your job involve?
Researching, exploring, reading, designing a tour, guiding. For me, it's always important to know who I will guide for beforehand—what country tourists are from, their ages, their reason for visiting Odessa. It helps me to evaluate their background knowledge and to provide a tour in a certain way.

What are the main sights and attractions in your city?
The beautiful Opera House built by Viennese architects at the end of the nineteenth century.
The Potyomkin Steps connected with the mutiny on the battleship 'Prince Potyomkin' in 1905 and a famous film by Eisenstein.
The non-stop beach nightlife with lots of discos, restaurants, and bars.

Do you do any special tours?
Yes, I do Criminals of Odessa, Catacombs, Jewish Odessa, Palaces of Odessa, and a very special tour which only I do—Pirates of Odessa, which involves changing into pirate costumes, visiting a pirates' cave, and listening to and singing pirate songs.

What do you enjoy most about your job?
I try to make a sort of performance for my tourists. I hate boring academic tours with lots of dates in them. People usually forget them. They remember the impression about the city. Some interesting stories. Sometimes I even dance and sing.

What do you find most challenging?
Big groups of people and a stressful schedule. It happens when I work for a cruise ship.

Have you had any interesting people on your tours?
What do you mean by 'interesting'? If you mean famous, yes. I did tours for some famous Russian actors, composers, and writers. If you mean nice to talk to, sure. Almost all of them were interesting. I always learn something from people I guide for.

Apart from guiding, do you do any other work?
Yes, I teach English. That's also a sort of performance.

Do you have any particular plans for the future?
Apart from guiding, I love travelling. Next year I'm going to Siberia to see Lake Baikal with my Dutch friend and then for a cycling tour around Holland.

Any advice for someone about to start as a Tour Guide?
Love what you are doing. Be inquisitive and enthusiastic.

Personal appearance

How important is the way you dress and your personal appearance in tourism? Read this extract from the 'Standards of performance' for a national Tour Guide Association.

1 How would the standards be different for (a) a hot country, (b) a Muslim country, (c) your country?

2 Change the standards so that they are appropriate for your country.

Dress appropriately for the occasion
- city guiding – tailored trousers or skirt and a jacket for women, tailored trousers for men with jacket and tie
- country or island guiding – as for city, but jackets may be replaced by smart sweater
- weatherproof clothing and footwear, depending on season
- outdoor activities – appropriate protective clothing for weather and conditions
- be aware of personal hygiene and condition of clothing

Speaking
Checking the schedule
Role-play the conversations between a tour guide and a hotel, and a tour guide and a driver. Student A, go to p.109. Student B, go to p.114.

Writing
Preparing notes for commentaries
1 Work in groups of four. Read sections b and e of the commentary on p.133 and identify what the speakers actually say for these notes.

Things to remember at start
- welcome
- check microphone
- introduce self and driver comfortable?
- temperature?
- explain day – lunch, visit castle, arrive hotel 6:00 p.m.
- relax – commentary later

Getting off reminders
- thank you – enjoy?
- break – coffee and toilets
- back in 30 minutes (check time)
- be careful (steep steps)

2 Work in pairs. You are guides. Choose either A or B below and say what the guide would actually say for these notes. Your partner should compare your commentary with the text on p.116.

A Top Visual Priority: Description

Tower Bridge
- Before bridge – one of most famous sights
- Tower Bridge – started 1886 – took 8 years
- great engineering achievement – was world’s largest hydraulic bridge
- two towers each 40m high
- walkway 45m above river – closed in 1910 (too many suicides)
- bridge opens at least once a day – if lucky might see it!

B Must Tell: Story / Anecdote
- Green Park on left
- Why 'Green' Park?
- No flowers – just trees and grass.
- Why no flowers?
- In 17th C king walked thru park – picked flowers for mistress (girlfriend)
- Queen (wife) not happy – all flowers removed
- Bunch of grass = not so romantic!

3 Write notes for the Top Visual Priority (a description of a famous sight) and Must Tell (an amusing story or something about the food and drink or local customs) sections for a tour in your own country or region. Remember to write only the notes, not the full text.

Speaking
Coach tour role-play
1 In pairs, prepare a tour of an area you know well. You can use or adapt the notes you made in Writing.
   - Things to remember at start
   - Top Visual Priority – description
   - Must Tell – story / anecdote
   - Getting off reminders

2 Work in groups of five or six. Take turns to give your commentary to the rest of the group. The ‘passengers’ should make notes on each guide’s performance using the Standards of performance in Vocabulary on p.71.
Listening

Problems on tour

Listen to a guide dealing with a problem on a coach. Which of these situations has occurred?
1 coach breaks down in the city centre
2 coach breaks down on the motorway
3 driver feels very ill and can’t continue
4 one of the passengers faints
5 air-conditioning breaks down
6 one of the passengers gets very upset

Look at this list of guidelines given to tour guides. Listen to the guide again and tick (✓) the boxes when the guide demonstrates one of the guidelines.
Guideline
1 Listen to the customer
2 Apologize
3 Show sympathy and understanding
4 Address the customer by name
5 Explain and clarify
6 Calm the person/people if they are agitated
7 Solve the problem or offer a plan of action
8 Use the support of colleagues and supervisors if necessary
9 Make sure the customer knows exactly what you’re going to do
10 End the discussion

Do you think the guide handled the situation well?
Would you have done anything differently?

Language spot

Language of calming and dealing with a crisis

Match these expressions from Listening with the guidelines in 2.

1 I’m very sorry about this, but as you can see we have a bit of a problem.
2 Now, please keep calm.
3 Please don’t worry, Mrs Parsons.
4 This is what we’re going to do. We’re going to...
5 Oh dear, what’s the matter?
6 Don’t worry.
7 I know, I understand.
8 Let me explain the situation.
9 I hope that’s clear?
10 I’ll tell you what we’ll do.

Here are some more expressions. Match them with the guidelines.

1 Oh dear, that sounds terrible. Have a seat.
2 Try to relax. I’m sure it’ll be all right.
3 Please calm down.
4 Do you all understand what we’re going to do?
5 Let’s go and ask at the desk to see if they know anything.
6 I’m afraid I’m going to have to talk to my head office.
7 I don’t think there’s any point continuing with this discussion.
8 This is the plan of action: we’re going to...

Work in pairs. Choose one of the expressions from 1 or 2, and say it to your partner. Your partner should respond with a different expression that does the same thing.

Example
A Don’t worry
B There’s nothing to worry about.

Go to Grammar reference p.123
Pronunciation

1. Listen. Which word or words are stressed most in each expression?
   1. a. I'm sorry about this.
      b. I'm really sorry about this.
   2. a. There's nothing to worry about.
      b. There's really nothing to worry about.
   3. a. That sounds terrible.
      b. That sounds really terrible.
   4. a. I do apologize.
      b. I really do apologize.

2. Now listen to these versions of the same expression. Which communicates more concern, a or b?
   1. a. I'm really sorry about this.
      b. I'm really sorry about this.
   2. a. There's really nothing to worry about.
      b. There's really nothing to worry about.
   3. a. That sounds really terrible.
      b. That sounds really terrible.
   4. a. I really do apologize.
      b. I really do apologize.

3. How are the a and b versions in 2 different? (Hint: which words are stressed most in each version?)

4. Practise saying the expressions in 1. Pay attention to sentence stress.

Speaking

What would you say?

1. Work in pairs. Choose one of the situations from Listening 1, or one from the list below (or you can invent your own). What would you say?
   - You have fifty passengers on the coach, but the microphone is not working.
   - Some of the passengers say they booked a tour to a historic building, but you are already heading for a theme park.
   - As you are just setting off, there is loud bang from the engine and the coach stops.

2. Take turns to act out the situation with your partner. Correct each other's language and suggest ways of improving what you say and do.

Checklist

I can explain arrangements
I can make written notes to help with commentaries and presentations
I can give a guided commentary
I can deal with problems on tours

- the perfect worker

Pronunciation

1. Listen and practise saying the words below. Pay attention to the pronunciation of the consonants at the beginning of each word.
   - scuba diving
   - skating
   - sports
   - swimming

2. Now listen and practise these words. Pay attention to the pronunciation of the consonants at the end of each word.
   - kids
   - adult
   - practised
   - went

3. Now combine words from 2 with activities from 1 and say what activities there are, or what activities people did. Be careful with groups of consonants at the beginning and end of words.
   Examples
   - The kids' scuba diving classes are in the morning.
   - The adult skating classes are in the sports hall.
   - We practised skating yesterday.
   - We went swimming last night.

4. Make up a tongue twister about hotel entertainment with as many consonant groups as possible.
   Example
   - The kids practised sports, but the adults tried scuba diving and windsurfing.

Preparing a daily programme

1 Work in pairs. Look back at Reading, and analyse the activities programme. Ask questions like this.

   Does the programme have something for everyone?
   Is there something to do at all times of the day?
   Are the activities varied and fun?

2 When you have identified the weak points in the programme, think of better activities.

3 Prepare a programme of events for an imaginary hotel. Think of original names for the kids’ club, the activities for teenagers, and so on.

4 Work with another two pairs. Present your programme. Student A, announce the daytime activities. Student B, announce the evening activities. Say things like this:

   Student A  Good morning, everyone. We hope you slept well and are ready for a lot more fun. Today’s programme has something for everyone. To start the day …

   Student B  Good morning, everyone. We hope you have had a great day and are ready for a lot more fun. This evening’s programme has something for everyone. To start the evening …

Where in the world?

MGM Grand
Las Vegas

The MGM Grand is one of the world’s biggest hotels with over 5,000 rooms. Las Vegas, of course, is famous for its casinos, but if your luck is down, is there anything else to entertain you? And what about kids? What is there for them? Read on and find out.

Guests to the MGM Grand are fascinated by the glamour and excitement of its sophisticated shows, high-class dining, and first-class nightlife. But if you want to take it easy, it’s cool by the pool, once you’ve decided which one. This ‘city of entertainment’ offers its guests so much that it’s more like a big-budget film studio than a place to sleep. And it’s just as big. With 5,034 rooms, the $1 billion MGM Grand resort hotel offers the maximum Vegas experience.

Attractions: the Lion Habitat is a glass-enclosed area where you can watch the lions feed, play, and sleep; the CBS Television City Research Center screens new television shows daily.

Dining: try cordon-bleu cookery at The Mansion, fresh fish at Michael Mina’s Seablue restaurant, the Louisiana flavor of the New Orleans Fish House, the nouvelle cuisine of the Wolfgang Puck Bar & Grill, or a taste of Italy at the Fiamma Trattoria.

Entertainment: different visiting stars at the MGM Grand Garden Arena, a 16,800-seat special events center; the Hollywood Theatre, a 7,400-seat theater.

Health club: stay fit or get fit. Either way, the health club has what you need.

Nightlife: choose between the Studio 54 nightclub, and the Tablou lounge. Or visit them both!

Pools: the 2,500 m² water complex features five pools, three Jacuzzis, and a unique 300m-long river pool.

Wedding chapel: Las Vegas weddings are world famous, and the Forever Grand Wedding Chapel offers once-in-a-lifetime wedding ceremony packages.

Spa: our 2,700 m² spa boasts more than 20 treatment rooms and all kinds of massages and spa services.

Child-care facilities: No.

Working with kids

Children's entertainment is very important in beach hotels. Children's entertainers usually need the help of their company training manual to do their job well.

1 Look at the introduction to the section on entertaining children in the manual.
   1 Why is working with kids difficult?
   2 Why is it important to keep kids entertained?

2 Match four of the points of special attention with the extracts from the manual.

3 Read the extracts again. Answer the questions.
   1 Why should an entertainer 'be a kid again'?
   2 Think of three more themes for kids' programmes.
   3 When is children's entertainment work more difficult – early in the season or in mid-season?

4 Work in groups. Think of two pieces of advice for each of the other points. Pool all your ideas with the rest of the class.

KIDS' ENTERTAINMENT

Remember! Remember! Remember!

1 Working with kids is not an easy option. They have more energy than an Olympic athlete, and are more demanding than any of your bosses at Maximaal Entertainment.

2 Kids' entertainment is possibly the most important part of hotel entertainment. Why? Because happy kids make happy parents.

Always pay special attention to
- Atmosphere
- Themes
- Safety
- Reality
- Ability
- Parents

1 We train you, but this is what you create. Make every day different and make it special. Put originality and effort into your programmes. The more you try, the more kids love you. And dress the part – dress up each day to fit the theme. Show the kids you're interested in them. Be a kid again. You'll be surprised how good it feels.

2 Each day has to be different and that can be hard for you. Don't despair. Remember that kids have great imaginations, and draw on that. Pirates, the stars, magicians, dinosaurs, monsters, and fairy tales – there are a thousand things that can make the focus for the day. And don't forget local and national festivities. They are also part of a kid's world.

3 Where there are kids, there are parents. With time, you'll see that parents aren't that hard to deal with. Welcome them and their kids in the same way – with interest and enthusiasm. Use parents where possible. And don't forget: with young kids, make sure you know where the parents are.

4 It doesn't matter how well you plan your programmes – things can change. Early or late in the season there may not be enough kids to run some activities. In the middle of the season it can get so hot that lots of kids (or their parents) want to stay indoors. This will ruin a sports day. But these are real situations and you need to accept them and adapt.

Helping kids to make things

1 Look at phrases a–h from Sonia’s instructions. Which phrases tell the group 1 what they have to do?
   2 what they have to do and the sequence they have to follow?
   a Blow up one of the balloons to stretch it a little.
   b Now, once you’ve stretched the balloon, fill it with water and tie a knot.
   c When you tie the knot, make the shape of the balloon as round as possible.
   d Do you see what I mean?
   e Now get another balloon, blow it up, let the air out...
   f ... when you've let the air out, place the first balloon inside it.
   g Work in twos and help each other.
   h Have you all done that?

2 We use the imperative to tell people what to do. What other verb tenses has Sonia used?

3 Look at c and f. They both begin with when and they both describe two actions. Which phrase describes
   1 Action 1 and next Action 2?
   2 Action 1 and at the same time Action 2?

What is niche tourism?

1 Read the text. Which is growing faster: mass tourism or niche tourism?
2 Do you know what all the ‘micro-niches’ are? Which ones
   1 are geared towards students and young people?
   2 help tourists to find out about their ancestors?
   3 get tourists working on environmentally-friendly projects?
   4 involve being either a participant or a spectator?
   5 involve eating and drinking?
3 Here are some more niches. What do you think each of them involves? Where would you put them on the chart?

   2 plane-spotting
   3 cosmetic surgery
   4 film trail
Inside tourism: mass tourism – niche tourism

Mass tourism has grown at a remarkable pace in the last fifty years – more leisure time, more tourists, more resorts, bigger hotel complexes, more attractions able to take huge numbers of visitors, larger aircraft, many more flights. But in contrast to this, as people have travelled more, the need to experience something different, something special, something tailored to the specific needs and interests of individuals and groups of individuals, has also grown. The result is ‘niche tourism’: tour operators have realized there is a market for the specialist tourist, and it is a market that often spends more than the ‘package-holiday’ tourist. This market is perhaps the fastest-growing market in the tourism industry.

Niche tourism has a thousand different faces – holidays for senior citizens, tours for the disabled, gastronomic holidays, tours geared towards the gay community, photographic holidays, ‘dark’ tourism (visiting places with sinister and macabre histories), and many more. The chart below lists some of the niches.

TOURISM ACTIVITIES

Mass tourism
- Conventional tourism involving large numbers of tourists in staged settings

Niche tourism
- Special interests, culture, and/or activity-based tourism involving a small number of tourists in authentic settings

Micro-niches

Cultural
- Heritage
- Tribal
- Religious
- Educational
- Genealogy
- Research

Environmental
- Nature and wildlife
- Ecotourism
- Adventure
- Alpine
- Geotourism
- Coastal

Rural
- Farms / barns
- Camping
- Wine / gastronomy
- Sport
- Festivals and events
- Arts and crafts

Urban
- Business
- Conference
- Exhibition
- Sport
- Gallery
- Art

Others
- Photographic
- Small cruise
- Volunteer
- Dark
- Youth
- Transport

4 Match the niches in 3 with these extracts from tour operator websites.

a. Follow in the footsteps of the boy wizard, visit Alnwick Castle, the location for Hogwarts, and see where Harry Potter learnt to fly his magic broomstick.

b. We will aim to see the latest range of aircraft used by the Greek Air Force.

c. From an insider’s glimpse of a hi-tech car plant to the weird antiquity of a Cuban cigar factory, going behind the scenes to learn how everyday consumer products are created is very enlightening.

d. Recovery time is important, but it is also an opportunity to relax and enjoy some of the beautiful tourist features of the region.
In a globalising world of increasing sameness, niche tourism represents diversity and ways of marking differences.

Preparing and running a specialized tour

Work in groups. Plan a niche tour in your own country or region. Work through each of the following stages.

Stage 1: Choose a niche
- Try to choose something different and exciting, but relevant to your area.
- The tour should be available to disabled as well as able-bodied people.

Stage 2: Plan the tour
- What makes it special?
- Decide the specialized and general tourism activities you are going to offer.
- Decide the transport and accommodation arrangements you are going to offer.
- Map out the basic itinerary.

Stage 3: Brief the staff involved
- What staff are going to be involved in the tour?
- What training will they need?

Stage 4: Presentation
- Present your tour in detail to another group.

Cross-cultural misunderstandings

Some niches are very specialized and unusual, and sometimes they will not be understood by the host community. Cultural differences and misunderstandings like this can often occur when working in tourism.

Read about one group of niche tourists whose hobby was not understood, and who found themselves in serious trouble.

1 What was the niche interest of the tourists?
2 What went wrong?
3 What could the tourism professionals (tour operator, tour guide, etc.) have done to avoid the problems?
4 What misunderstandings - cultural or otherwise - do you think could occur on some of the other specialist holidays we have looked at in this unit?

Plane-spotters cleared of spying

Eleven British and two Dutch plane-spotters, who were given prison sentences for spying in Greece, have been allowed to go free.

The group were arrested one year ago as they took notes at an air base open day in Kalamata, Greece.

Paul Coppin, the tour operator who arranged the trip, was one of the arrested group. He said that it had been a misunderstanding and that it was obvious that they were not spies, but that they were just doing their hobby.

Squadron Leader Nektarios Samara, of the Greek Air Force, said their actions could be dangerous for the security of the country. He had no idea that plane-spotting was a hobby and that it was allowed in other countries.

Find out

Find out about business travel to and from your country.

1. Contact your National Tourist Office or search on the Internet to find out similar statistics to those for the UK in Take off.

2. Research some of the large companies in your country to see if they are involved in any of the business travel events identified in the table in Vocabulary.

3. What job opportunities are there in your country related to business travel? For example: at trade fairs or exhibitions, at corporate hospitality events, in ‘meet and greet’.
An exhibitor at a trade fair was giving green hats to those who visited the stand. One Chinese visitor refused to accept one and looked angry. The exhibitors later learned that although green is a positive colour in China, the expression ‘He wears a green hat’ is used to imply a man is unfaithful to his wife or girlfriend.

Customer care

Cultural awareness

Read the cultural advice given by a tour operator to clients on one of their tours to Egypt.

One of the most outstanding features of the Egyptian people is that of generous hospitality. To an Arab, hospitality is more than good manners; it is a matter of honour and they regard it as a sacred duty. Remember that Egypt is an Islamic country. Observe their customs and dress code in order not to cause offence. Modest clothing, which covers arms, shoulders and legs, is recommended.

1. Did you know about these aspects of Egyptian / Arabic culture? Does any of the information surprise you?

2. What advice would you give to tourists coming to your country about hospitality, behaviour, and dress code?

Listening

The needs of the business traveller

1. Which of these are more important for business travellers than for non-business tourists and travellers?
   1. time to choose from different travel options
   2. possibility to make reservations at short notice
   3. access to reservations 24 hours a day
   4. express check-in at airports
   5. packaged travel arrangements – flight, transfer, accommodation, meals, etc. all included
   6. fast internet connections in hotels
   7. hotel in a quiet relaxing location
   8. support information on local area and culture

2. Carlos Lozano is a travel agent specializing in business travel. Listen to the interview. Which of the items in 1 does he say are more important for the business traveller?

3. Listen again.
   1. What is the role of the account manager?
   2. How does Carlos’s company ‘go the extra mile’?

4. What topics would you expect to be included in a ‘Culture guide’ covering basics of social etiquette and doing business with different cultures?

Reading

Culture guide

1. Look at the text. Match these tips with some of the categories in the Cultural Etiquette section.
   a. Leaving food on your plate is considered rude.
   b. When someone meets you for the first time, they may give you their business card. Always look at it carefully and keep it on the desk in front of you.
   c. When shopping, it is inappropriate to bargain. Shop assistants will give you your change on a tray without counting it in front of you.
   d. Do not eat or drink while walking on the street.
   e. Tipping in restaurants is not usual. In fact if a tip is offered, it may be refused.
   f. If you are given a present, do not open it in front of the person who gave it to you.

2. All of these tips are from the guide to one country. Can you guess which country it is?

3. Answer the questions.
   1. Do you agree that such notes will be especially useful for business travellers?
   2. Are all the categories relevant to all tourists? Which ones are not?
   3. Do you think it’s better to use an interpreter or to speak a common language?
   4. Do you think your spoken English is too formal or not formal enough?
Write some 'cultural etiquette' tips for your country or region (or a country that you know well). Try to write one tip for each of the categories in the text.

A guide to culture and language for the business traveller

These notes and guidelines are for anyone travelling to a country which they are not familiar with. However, as a business traveller you may find them especially useful, partly because you'll probably have more encounters with local people when doing business, and also because more may depend on them – a contract could be won by getting the cultural etiquette right.

Cultural etiquette
1. Greetings and introductions
2. Small talk / topics of conversation
3. Dress
4. Behaviour in public
5. Appointments and punctuality
6. Behaviour in meetings
7. Shopping
8. Dining out
9. Paying for meals / tipping
10. Gift-giving

Advice on language
1. Always try to learn a few words of the language of the country you are visiting, even if it's just Hello, Thank you, and Goodbye.
2. Find out beforehand what language you will be speaking with your hosts. If it's English, find out if their level is the same as yours. Check whether you need interpreting services.
3. If you're speaking English, remember not just to get the vocabulary and grammar as correct as possible, but also to get the level of formality right – be appropriate and polite, not too casual or informal.

Reading
Business travel and the tourism industry

1 In pairs, discuss how business travel can benefit the tourism industry in a particular destination.

EXAMPLE increased hotel occupancy

2 Read the text to see if any of your ideas are mentioned.

Inside tourism: combining business with pleasure

The first major way in which business travel benefits tourism in general is that it brings more business to travel agents, transport providers, and hotels. Travel for business-related purposes can increase the level of leisure and recreational activity at the destination in a number of ways.

Extenders
Business travellers extending their visit to the destination – adding a number of days before or after – in order to enjoy the cultural, shopping, or sightseeing resources of the destination.

Guests
Business travellers being accompanied by guests (usually spouses or families) who engage in leisure tourism activities such as sightseeing excursions while at the destination.

Social programme
Business travellers themselves engaging in leisure or recreational activities as part of the social, networking, or relaxation element of the event attended.

Returners
Business travellers who have been impressed by the destination returning with their spouses or families for holidays or short breaks, or encouraging others to do so.

The second major way in which business travel benefits tourism is that it provides employment. Often this work is temporary – helping at conferences, trade fairs, or hospitality events – but these jobs can lead to longer term work and careers in tourism.
3 Are these activities and tours examples of ‘extenders’, ‘guests’, ‘social programme’, or ‘returners’?

1. Edinburgh: Special whisky-tasting evening for delegates
2. Vancouver: Come and see us again! Bring the family and get a discount
3. Istanbul: While you work – sightseeing excursion for your partner
4. Helsinki: Post-conference three-day Lapland tour

4 What extender, guest, and social programme activities would you include for a conference in your city or region?

Writing

A conference enquiry

Choose one of the four hotels we have looked at in the Where in the world? and Speaking sections.

Write an email reply to the representative of a company enquiring about conference facilities. You are going to attach full details of your conference facilities, but you should answer the enquirer’s direct questions in your email.

Dear Conference Coordinator

We are interested in holding our annual conference in your hotel and I would be grateful if you could send me full details of your conference packages and facilities.

We are particularly interested in the capacity of your meeting rooms and the technical equipment and services you offer.

Also, are there any special features that you offer?

I look forward to hearing from you.

It's my job

Abdol Sadeghi

Many Westerners aren't sure where Tehran is. But for 29-year-old Abdol Sadeghi, manager of the Tigran hotel complex, the Iranian capital is both his home and his place of work. Why did Abdol choose to work in the hotel trade? Which part of hotel work does he like best? What does he do in his free time? Read on and find out.

How long have you been in the hotel business?
I started very young - when I was twelve years old.

Why did you start so early?
My father believes that a good manager must know every part of the job. I started cleaning the toilets, working as a waiter, and so on. He wanted me to try every aspect of the job, and not to start immediately as a manager.

Of course, you're not just a manager now?
No, I'm vice-president of our group, too.

What keeps you going?
I like my job. And it’s a family business. It’s what I can do to help my family.

And what do you enjoy most about your job?
Reception work, of course, because that puts me right in contact with the public.

An average day?
I don't think we have average days in our business. Most days I work twelve hours... but it depends on the day. Sometimes I work seventeen hours. But in the low season, I can usually get two days or three days off a week.

Listening

Common problems

1 Look at the list of common problems. Listen to two people complaining to reception. In each case
1 identify the problem from the list
2 decide who should normally deal with it.
   a the receptionist  c the duty manager
   b another department
1 air-conditioning does not work
2 room too cold
3 shower does not work
4 not enough light in the bathroom
5 noise from the street / other room
6 TV image poor
7 cannot connect to Internet
8 cannot get the pay-TV channels
9 room service slow
10 non-smoking room smells of smoke

What do you do with that time?
Go out with friends, ski in winter, surf the Internet... visit my parents and my sister.

Just the sort of things anyone of his age does. Except for one thing. His mother and sister are in the Turkey branch of the business, and his father manages another complex in the north of Iran. Hotels run in the family!

2 Listen again and decide if each receptionist has dealt with the problem effectively. If not, identify what they did wrong and say what should have happened.
(Hint: remember what you learned in Speaking on p.43.)

3 Look at the other problems in the list. Work in groups and decide how they can best be dealt with. Report your decisions to the whole class.

Responding to problems

1. Listen to the situations again and complete the dialogues.
   1. R: Oh, I'm very sorry about that. Would you like to change rooms?
   G: Yes, I think I'd prefer that.
   R: OK, I'll issue a new key right away and ________ you to change.
   2. G: Until October! You're not serious? The weather forecast on TV said it would drop to 6° tonight.
   R: I'll ________ you an extra blanket.

2. Which of the structures summarizes the way get is used in 1?
   1. get something done
   2. get someone to do something
   3. get something for someone

3. Complete the dialogue using get and the words in brackets.
   G: Hi. This is Room 431. It's very hot in my room.
   R: I'm sorry about that, sir. Have you tried adjusting the thermostat?
   G: Yes, I (the porter / adjust) it as soon as we got into the room, but it's still very hot.
   R: Mm. OK, I'll (maintenance / have a look) at it.
   G: Will it take long?
   R: They're in the conference centre at the moment. I'll (them / do) it as soon as they can.
   G: Oh, OK. One more thing. Can we get tickets for the theatre tonight?
   R: Of course. I'll (the concierge / reserve) them for you.

4. Think of three more things you can get someone to do for a guest in a hotel. Tell your partner.
   Example: You can get the bellboy to park a guest's car.

Reading

Check-out procedures

1. What do you know about check-out procedures in hotels? Share your experience and ideas with the class.

2. Look at the flow diagram for the check-out procedure. Which sections of the training manual correspond to 1 – 7 on the diagram?

3. Read the other sections of the manual. Work with a partner and try to draw the rest of the flow diagram.

4. Read these statements. Write T (true) or F (false).

   1. Always check all items on a bill with the corresponding departments.

   2. Hotel services used the night before departure will not appear on the front office screen.

   3. With bills on credit through companies, do not show the client the bill.

   4. Give all bills on credit through companies to the head receptionist.

   5. With direct payment, explain each item on the bill verbally.

   6. If you modify a bill, get the client to check it again.

Process 4 – check-out

Check-out should follow the flow chart below.

- Client asks for bill
- Open client history → Agency → Attach voucher to bill → Bill to head receptionist
- Payment on credit? → Yes
- No → Company

4.1 REQUEST FOR BILL

a. The check-out process begins when a client asks for their bill. Bring up all of the documents connected to the client’s room.

b. Check the payment details on the screen. For payment on credit, go to 4.2. For direct payment, go to 4.3.

c. Ask the client if they used any hotel services (bar, minibar, etc.) the previous evening. If they did, locate the charges on the computer and include them in the bill.

4.2 BILLS ISSUED TO CREDIT

4.2.1 Payment on credit through agencies

a. Agency here means any travel agency, conference organizing agency, internet agency, or similar.

b. Never show the bill to the client, in order to maintain the privacy of the data on it. All agency bills are given over to the head receptionist, who sends them to the agency.

4.2.2 Payment on credit to companies

a. With company bills, always show the client the bill, unless there is an explicit order not to from the company. Ask the client to check the bill and sign it if correct.

b. If the client is not happy with the bill, check all items with the corresponding departments. Modify the bill in the case of error. After making any modifications, ask the client to check the bill again, and sign it to show conformity.

4.3 DIRECT PAYMENT OF BILL

a. Where a client has to make direct payment to Reception, in cash or with a credit card, the receptionist asks the client which method they will use.

b. Show the client the bill, detailing each item verbally. If the client is happy with the bill, ask them to sign it to show conformity.

c. If the client is not happy with the bill, check all items with the corresponding departments. Modify the bill in the case of error. Ask the client to check the bill again, and sign it to show conformity.

d. Once conformity has been obtained, charge the client.

4.4 CUSTOMER SATISFACTION

On a daily basis, hand out customer satisfaction feedback forms at random to four or five clients, as described in Procedure P.Qual.06.
Listening

Can I have my bill?

1. Listen to a receptionist checking a client out.
   1. What is the client's name?
   2. How does the client pay?
   3. Is the bill correct?

2. Listen again. The receptionist makes a mistake with the correct check-out procedure. What is it?

3. What does the receptionist say to close the check-out procedure? What other things could you say just before a client leaves?

4. Look at the phrases below. Listen again. Which phrases does the receptionist use, and in which order?
   1. Could I just have your card for a moment?
   2. I'm just printing your bill out. Has everything been to your satisfaction?
   3. So, if I could just ask you to sign here.
   4. Did you have anything from the minibar last night?
   5. Here's your bill. Can I just ask you to check it?
   6. I'm sorry. I'll just check the bill again.
   7. I'm sorry. That was our mistake. I'll just print out the bill again for you.
   8. It's been a pleasure having you here.
   9. Here's your credit card and this is your copy of the payment slip.
   10. Will the bill be on the company account?
   11. Will you be paying by credit card?

5. Work in pairs. Which of the phrases in 4 would a receptionist use in each of these situations?
   1. A guest checking out and paying directly. The bill is correct.
   2. A guest checking out through a company account. There is a mistake in the bill.

Speaking

Checking guests out

Work in pairs. Role-play checking out, using the hotel bill.

1. Student A, you are the receptionist. Student B, you are the guest. Ask for your bill. Pay by credit card. The bill is correct.

2. Change roles. Student A, you are the guest. Ask for your bill. Pay through the company account. The bill is not correct.

3. Invent new situations. Decide how you are paying and if the bill is correct. Act out the situations.

Quality standards

Many tourism organizations set 'quality standards' or 'performance standards' for their employees. Quality standards for checking out customers at a hotel might include the following:

- To smile and be courteous to the guest at all times.
- To use the guest's name when addressing him or her.
- To process a guest's closing account quickly and efficiently.
- To check all items are included in the bill and to agree them with the guest.
- To check the guest was happy with the service provided and, if not, to note any problems and pass them on to the management.

1. Look back at the reading on check-out procedures on p.104 and add one more quality standard.

2. Write three quality standards for greeting and checking in a guest at a hotel.

3. Choose another job in tourism – one that you might do in the future. Write three quality standards.

Reading
Unsolicited feedback

Hotels have mechanisms for getting feedback, but travellers sometimes put their opinions on websites. The opinions below are about a beach hotel in Minorca, Spain.

1. Work in pairs. Read the postings and summarize the feedback in the table by grading the opinions from 1 (very poor) to 5 (excellent).

2. Read the postings again and decide which:
1. of the three postings is most positive
2. hotel features are criticized most strongly.

3. Make notes about any especially useful comments.

4. Work individually. Student A, go to p.115. Student B, go to p.116. Read the posting on your page. In your own words tell your partner what you found. Your partner will include it in the table.

1. We stayed at the Hotel Espiga D'Or in September with our four-year-old son and seven-year-old daughter. The hotel is right on the coast and 200 metres from the beach. The entertainment programme for children was superb. The staff were well-trained, creative, and energetic. The same staff also did the adult programme, which had a couple of really good shows. The only thing we found unpleasant was the smoking. Smoking is allowed in far too many places in our opinion! Overall, very good value for money.

2. We stayed at this hotel in September. When we booked, we knew it was really for families with young kids. Certainly the hotel was full of them while we were there, and they were quite noisy. But the hotel has a quiet adult pool area around the back, so if you like a bit of quiet sunbathing then that's the place to go. The food in the main restaurant was OK, though not much imagination went into it. We still had a good time and made some good friends. Oh, the staff – brilliant! And overall, excellent value for money.
Writing
Reporting to the manager

Unsolicited feedback like the comments in Reading is important to hotels and to resort managers.

1 Work with a partner. You were holiday reps together in the Hotel Espiga D’Or. You are going to prepare a report for your Resort Manager about what you found on the Internet. Decide
   • what information you are going to put in the report
   • how many different sections your report will have
   • if you are going to use tables and bullet points
   • who will be responsible for writing each section.

2 Go to p.52 in the Writing Bank if you want to see a similar report.

3 Work individually and write the sections that you are responsible for. When you have finished, give them to your partner for checking.

4 Work together and prepare the final version of the report.

My husband and I stayed at the Hotel Espiga D’Or for two weeks last August with our kids. We had a fantastic time. The food was great. We loved the local food, and there were the usual pizzas and burgers for the kids. The entertainment was also excellent. Loads of really imaginative kids stuff – the hotel is more for families than couples. But as parents, we made some really good friends and had some great laughs. And all the staff were very polite and friendly, and spoke excellent English. Overall, very good value for money.

Checklist
Assess your progress in this unit. Tick (✓) the statements which are true.

- I can understand somebody talking about front office duties
- I can respond to common hotel guest problems effectively
- I can understand the check-out procedure in a training manual
- I can check a hotel guest out following standard procedures
- I can write a short report summarizing feedback on hotel services

1 Tourism is a very complex industry. Which area in tourism would you like to go into – tour operation, travel agency work, the hotel trade, or tourist information?

2 What opportunities will you have in your chosen area to progress into tourism management?

3 What would you tell your employers about yourself if they asked you to justify your place on a junior management course?

1. You are the guest. Use this information to register.
   - Room type: single
   - Number of nights: 6
   - Smoking / Non-smoking: Smoking
   - Other preferences: inside room / near lift
   - Garage: Yes
   - Payment: credit card

   If you can, use your own ID and credit card during the check-in process.

2. Now change roles. You are the receptionist. Welcome the guest and complete the check-in screen.

Adventure sports – diving
Diving in the tropical waters of the Indian Ocean around the Maldives. Diving takes place every day, and all levels from beginners to advanced are catered for.
Experienced divers can also train as diving instructors.
Other extreme diving destinations include the Arctic region of northern Russia for ice-diving (diving under the ice).

Medical tourism:
Going to another country for medical treatment, perhaps because the cost is cheaper or the service better and quicker.
Treatments can include fairly major operations, but cosmetic surgery and treatments are more common – facelifts, botox injections to forehead and eyes (to reduce appearance of ageing), collagen injections to lips, liposuction.
Most tourists coming for cosmetic surgery combine the trip with a relaxing holiday, so warm countries with good beaches are very popular destinations, in particular South Africa and Malaysia.

Unit 9  p.81
Getting kids to make things

Student A

Materials
an A4-sized piece of black cardboard a stapler a white crayon string elastic scissors

Instructions
Place the cardboard over the face, and use a crayon to mark the position of the eyes.
Carefully cut eyeholes in the position marked for each eye.
Use the crayon to colour the mask.
Make cuts in the cardboard, then fold it and staple it to give the mask volume.
Staple the elastic to the sides.
To make the hair, cut pieces of string of different lengths.
Make holes around the top of the mask. Next, pass a piece of string through each hole and tie a knot.
Do this until there is enough hair.

You are a transfer rep.

Location: Major destinations around the world, but especially the Mediterranean and the Caribbean.

Work: As a transfer rep, you accompany holidaymakers to and from the airport. During coach trips to the hotel you will be responsible for a simple welcome talk.

Main responsibilities
- Accompanying guests on day and night excursions
- Answering customers’ questions and resolving complaints
- Basic resort administration
- Dealing with problems of overbooking at hotels
- Keeping guests occupied at the airport if there are any outgoing delays
- Making sure that the guests are booked into their accommodation
- Transferring customers to and from the airport

we’ve been waiting for ages for our bill.
Unit 9  p.81
Getting kids to make things

Student B

Materials
a large sheet of wrapping paper per group crayons or coloured pencils scissors
Blu-tack

Instructions
Lay out the paper on the floor.
One child from the group puts his/her hands on the paper.
The other children draw around the hands with crayons.
Once the outline has been made, another child puts his/her hands on the paper.
When all the children have hand outlines, the group can decorate the paper.
Use Blu-tack to stick the decorated paper on the wall for parents to see.
Alternatively, children can cut out their own hand shapes and decorate them.
Once they have decorated them, stick the shapes on a window.

Dia de La Tradicion (Day of the Gaucho), Argentina

Introduction
Popular cultural event in ranch areas of Argentina
Takes place in grasslands 600 km south of Buenos Aires. Main centre = Santiago del Areco (more horses than cars)
Horse parades, dance, song, barbecue

History
Gaucho (= Argentine cowboy) - national cultural symbol
Mid-19th century – gaucho skills essential for agriculture (cattle – vital part of Argentine economy)
Gaucho folk dances (milonga and payada) contributed to more famous tango.

What happens
Takes place over two weekends – leading to 10 November Displays of horsemanship, horse racing, parades of gauchos
Folk dances, climax on final Sunday
Barbecues – delicious beef / steaks – the best in the world

Solving problems

Student A

Situation 1
You are the guest. Use the information and ring reception to complain. (You don’t have to tell them all of the information at once.)
You are in Room 428. There is a lot of noise from the room below and you can’t get to sleep. You know it’s only 10:30 p.m., but you have a very early flight to catch in the morning. It sounds like the TV is on too loud, but it could be people arguing.

Situation 2
You are the receptionist. Listen to the guest and offer to solve their problem.

Situation 3
You are the guest. Use the information and ring reception to complain. (You don’t have to tell them all of the information at once.)
Your shower does not work. The water is either very hot or very cold. You need a shower before you go out for supper. It’s 7:00 p.m. and your table in the restaurant is booked for 8:30 p.m.

Situation 4
You are the receptionist. Listen to the guest and offer to solve their problem.
Unit 4  p.29

Student B

You are a campsite rep.

Location: Campsites in Southern Europe and North America.

Work: Same as a family rep. In addition, you have to put up tents (montage) and take them down (de-montage). If the campsite has cabins, you have to clean these for new guests.

Main responsibilities
- Airport transfers
- Answering customers’ questions and resolving complaints
- Basic resort administration
- Cleaning cabins
- Guiding excursions
- Montage & de-montage of tents
- Welcome meetings / selling excursions

Describing a festival

Festa del Redentore
Location: Venice, Italy
Timing: third weekend of July
Duration: two days
Information: www.comune.venezia.it/turismo

Introduction

The Festa del Redentore – the Festival of the Redeemer – is a high point of the Venice summer. Thanks to a spectacular firework display the Redentore is a major tourist attraction.

History

From 1575–77, Venice was hit by a terrible plague which killed more than a third of the city’s inhabitants. In 1576, the city’s leader, the Doge, promised to erect a church dedicated to the Redeemer, in return for help in ending the plague. On July 13, 1577, the plague was declared over, and work began to construct the church. It was also decided that Venice would forever give thanks on the third Sunday of July.

What happens

From early on the Saturday, boats are decorated with flowers, lanterns, and balloons. St Mark’s lagoon fills with as many as two thousand boats, their occupants eating and drinking as they wait for the traditional spectacular display of fireworks. (Arrangements can easily be made through your hotel for an evening with dinner on a boat.) At around 11.30 p.m. the display begins and the lagoon becomes one of the most atmospheric stages in the world. Fireworks illuminating the spires, domes, and bell towers of the city.

On Sunday a pontoon of decorated gondolas and other boats is strung across the Giudecca canal to allow the faithful to walk to the church of the Redentore. The climax of the festival is the mass held in the presence of the Patriarch of Venice, a reminder that the Festa has a serious side.

Life-seeing tourism
A term developed by Axel Dessau, Director of the Danish Tourism Board, to help tourists see not only the usual sights of a destination, but also to experience the real life of a place, particularly areas that they are interested in or that they work with in their own country.

For example, visitors might be government officials in their own country and might be interested in reviewing social problems and city government in the destination.

Expert guides will meet visitors and take them to visit city planning offices, schools, and social welfare centres. There may also be some special seminars arranged.

Denmark is one of the main destinations for this niche.

Genealogy tourism
Customers try to find out about their family history and write their family tree by researching records going back hundreds of years (in libraries and town halls).

They also visit the locations where their ancestors lived and try to understand the way of life that their ancestors experienced.

Customers are typically people whose families emigrated from countries like Ireland or Scotland to live in the USA, Canada, Australia, New Zealand, or South Africa.

My stay in this hotel took place in August. This is the first time we have been on a fully inclusive holiday. We weren’t sure what that would mean in practice, but I have to say that we weren’t disappointed. The food, for a start, was great – breakfast, snacks, lunch, dinner – all really great. The rooms were fine, too, very clean as was the whole hotel in general. Then the staff. Nothing was too much trouble for the hotel staff. The hotel entertainers were excellent. My seven-year-old daughter thought the Club de Piratas was amazing. We hardly saw her during the day, which was great for us and great for her. The disco for the adults was a must and after a couple of nights everybody knew all the words even of the Spanish songs. That was really fun. We did feel that the pools were too small for a hotel this size but we liked the adult pool by the bar, and the hotel was close to the beach, so often we just went there to swim.

I would recommend this hotel for families with young children or families with teenagers.

Solving problems

Student B

Situation 1
You are the receptionist. Listen to the guest and offer to solve their problem.

Situation 2
You are the guest. Use the information and ring reception to complain. (You don’t have to tell them all of the information at once.)

You can’t open the door with your key card. You are in Room 353. The card worked perfectly in the morning before you went out of the hotel.

Situation 3
You are the receptionist. Listen to the guest and offer to solve their problem.

Situation 4
You are the guest. Use the information and ring reception to complain. (You don’t have to tell them all of the information at once.)

You asked for a snack from Room Service over 30 minutes ago. You tried ringing them again, but they are not answering the phone or it’s engaged.

Top Visual Priority (description)
We’re now approaching one of the most famous sights in the city – Tower Bridge. Work started on the bridge in 1886 and it took eight years to complete. It was regarded as one of the great engineering achievements of the day, and was the world’s largest hydraulic bridge. The two towers are each 40 metres high, and the walkway is 45 metres above the river. The walkway was closed to the public in 1910 because there had been too many suicides. The bridge usually opens at least once a day, so if we’re lucky, we might see it in operation!

Must tell (story / anecdote)
On your left, you can see Green Park. Let me tell you a story about why Green Park is called Green Park. You’ll notice as we drive past that there are no flowers, just trees and grass – so it’s just green. Why are there no flowers? Because in the 17th century, the king at the time used to walk through the park and pick flowers to take to his mistress – or girlfriend – who lived across the park. His wife, the queen, was, not surprisingly, not very happy about this and arranged for all the flowers to be taken out. Taking a bunch of grass to your girlfriend is not so romantic!

My stay in this hotel took place in June.
We had a very nice fortnight at this hotel in June this year. In fact, this visit was our second time and we are thinking of booking for next year! The room was clean but basic, which we knew it would be, but it has a fantastic view of the sea. We enjoyed the meals again this year. We’re not keen on foreign food, so not everything was to our individual tastes, but there was always plenty of it, so neither of us ever went hungry. The adults-only dining area was a lovely new idea. Children are a lot of fun, but it is nice to be able to escape to an adult environment from time to time. We couldn’t always get two sunbeds together. There seemed to be fewer sunbeds this year. Strange. In the end we decided to hire a car. They’re so cheap here. And of course, there are plenty of nice beaches within easy reach. All in all a nice resort and a nice hotel with really friendly and helpful staff and well worth another return visit or two.

I would recommend this hotel for families with young children (and oldies like us, too).

1 Greeting and introducing

We can use several ways to greet people or to introduce ourselves.

Greeting

Informal

Hello / Hi, Julia – it's nice to see you again.

Formal

Good morning / afternoon / evening, Mrs Yashimoto. Here's your room key.

Welcoming

Welcome. / Welcome to Toronto.

NOT

Welcome at Toronto.

Or, if returning to a place:

Welcome back to Toronto.

Introducing yourself

Informal

Hi. My name's Johann.

Oh, hi. I'm Alex.

Formal

Good evening. My name is Mr Elliott.

May I introduce myself? I'm a colleague of Ms Pierron.

Introducing someone else

This is ...

Have you met ...?

Note that we only use that's or that is to identify someone who is not standing nearby.

You see the tall man with the glasses standing over there? That's Dr Mashiko.

When we introduce more than one person, we usually do so individually.

This is Ms Fleischman and this is Professor Schwartz.

NOT

These are Ms Fleischman and Professor Schwartz.

Checking someone's identity

You must be ...

As well as using must for obligation (You must pay for the ticket), we also use it when we are quite certain about something. Remember that must is always followed by infinitive without to.

We use You must be to refer to one or more people.

You must be the tour guide.

You must be Mr and Mrs Jakobsen.

It's ... isn't it?

This is only used when addressing one person, and does not change. It is usually used with someone whose name we think we already know.

Hi. It's David, isn't it?

NOT

You're ... aren't you?

Making an offer

As well as using can for ability, requests, and permission, we can also use it to make an offer.

Can I / we get / give / offer, etc.

Can I get you some more wine?

Can we do anything to help?

Note that the correct response is Yes / No, thank you. It is not polite to say Yes, you can.

2 Where things are

We can use several prepositions and phrases to describe where a person or thing is located.

in enclosed spaces, e.g. rooms, buildings, furniture in the basement
in the hotel
in the corner limited areas, e.g. towns, parks, countries, continents

in the hotel forecourt
in America

at general location, i.e. it is not important whether something or someone is inside or outside a building
Mr Homer called to say that he is already at the airport.
a specific point or feature in the room
I'll wait for you at the meeting point in expressions such as at the end of

Go down this corridor, and you'll find the gym at the end.
on surfaces, e.g. walls, floors, shelves on the first floor on the roof
  on the left / right
  NOT in the left

We use both next to and near to talk about how close things or people are, but next to means that one thing or person is at the side of another, while near tells us only that one thing or person is not far away from another.

Is the garage next to the hotel? – No, but it’s very near.

Between means having someone or something on each side.
The toilets are located between the restaurant and the bar.

Opposite means that one thing or person is facing another.
You’ll see the lifts immediately – they’re opposite the main entrance.

Over there is similar to there, but indicates a longer distance away from ourselves. We can combine over there with other prepositions to describe more accurately where something is.
Don’t use that lift. Use the one over there.
The business corner is over there next to the lounge.

Prepositions of movement

Although some of the verbs we use when giving directions are not followed by a preposition, e.g. reach, it is common for many verbs to combine with one preposition or more.

These verbs include come, get, and go.

They combine with prepositions such as along, at, down, out of, past, through, and up.
The same verb may be followed by different prepositions to give different meanings.
come out of = leave come to = reach

On the other hand, different verb + preposition combinations can sometimes have the same meaning.

One of the commonest verbs to use when giving directions is Go, but there are alternatives such as Head and Walk.

Go / Head / Walk along here for about five minutes.

Note that the prepositions down and up do not necessarily mean that the route is up or down a hill.

When combined with go, etc., these two prepositions have a similar meaning to along.

Go down this road.
Head up the High Street until you reach the bank.

out of (= leaving a location) and at ( = reaching a fixed point) can combine with a number of verbs.

When you come out of the market, turn left.

cut combines with through to indicate a shorter route.
The best way to get to the main road is to cut through the park.

Do not confuse towards and to. Towards means ‘in the direction of’, whereas to means ‘as far as’.

Walk towards the church but turn left before you reach it.
Walk to the church and cut through the churchyard.

3 Giving directions and prepositions of movement, Recommending and promoting

Giving directions

When giving directions, we usually use the imperative form of the verb. This is the same as the infinitive:
Go . . . , Take . . . , Turn . . .

However, we can also use an if sentence, as follows.

If you take the first road on the left, you’ll see the market on the right.

= If you + infinitive without to, you + will (you’ll) + infinitive without to Recommending and promoting

In tourism texts you'll find several ways to make a recommendation or promotion.

negative + without

No visit / trip / journey is complete without + -ing form or noun

No trip is complete without visiting / a visit to the museum.

or

Don't + infinitive without to (+ place name) + without + -ing form

Don't leave (Liverpool) without visiting the museum.

well worth

(well) worth + -ing form / noun

The Cavern Club is worth visiting / a visit.

Well worth + -ing form offers a stronger recommendation than worth + -ing form.

Why not

Why not + infinitive without to

Why not watch a football match?

If sentences

If + clause + you could + infinitive without to

If you want to get out and about, you could start at Pleasureland.

We can also use If with why not ...?

If you like shopping, why not go along to Albert Dock?

a must

We only use must as a noun when we are recommending or promoting a place.

The Beatles Museum is a must for any fans of the Fab Four.

The following expressions are used more in promotional texts.

You can find

In Liverpool, you can find everything you need for a fantastic holiday.

Whether

Whether is used to give more than one option.

Whether you're interested in music or art, football or shopping, Liverpool meets all your expectations.

... boast ...

We use boast to talk about an attraction that we would like to promote.

The city centre boasts the biggest range of shops in the region.

4 Advice and obligation

Advice

should

We use should and shouldn't to tell someone what we think is the best thing to do, or not to do.

Positive

You should make sure that you have a good night's sleep before changeover.

subject + should + infinitive without to

Negative

You shouldn't get too drunk on your day off.

subject + shouldn't + infinitive without to avoid

We use avoid to mean the same as You shouldn't. However, avoid has a different form.

Avoid partying too much at the beginning of the season.

Avoid this if you can.

Avoid + -ing form

Avoid + noun or pronoun

Note that avoid can also be combined with You should.

You should avoid partying too much.

Don't

Don't is used when giving advice.

Don't expect to have a private life as a ski rep.

Don't + infinitive without to

Note that we cannot say You don't ... when giving advice.

Nob
Obligation

have to

We use have to to talk about an action that is necessary because of laws or rules.

You have to wear your uniform at all times when on duty.

= subject + have to + infinitive without to mustn’t

mustn’t is the negative form of have to. We use mustn’t to tell someone what they can’t do because of laws or rules.

You mustn’t drink alcohol before you go skiing.
There’s a fine of €500.

= subject + mustn’t + infinitive without to

5 Describing food, Relative clauses

Describing food

We use the Passive when we do not know who did something, or when it is not important to say who did it.

As with Active sentences, we can use different tenses in the Passive, e.g. Present Passive, Past Simple Passive, etc.

Present Passive

The Present Passive is often used to talk about a custom that exists in the present.

* A pasta dish is served before the main course.

* A special meal is eaten on Friday evening.

= subject + Present Simple of be + past participle

We also use the Present Passive to describe a process such as the method of making and preparing a dish, or talking about ingredients and accompaniments. In this case, we often use the prepositions of or with after the Passive verb.

* A salade Marocaine is made of chopped tomatoes.
* Schnitzel is served with potato salad.
* This dish is cooked with potatoes and carrots.

Be careful to use the correct preposition after the verb.

It is possible to use other prepositions after the Passive, but these depend on the main verb.

* The meat is covered in breadcrumbs.

Relative clauses – who, which, and that

We use relative clauses to connect two ideas. There are two types of relative clause.

Non-defining

Look at the following sentences.

* I really love sushi. Sushi is our national dish.

By using the pronoun who or which, we can combine the two sentences and avoid repeating the subject.

* I really love sushi, which is our national dish.

Main clause   Relative clause

We use which to refer to a thing or things, and who to refer to a person or people.

In this way,

Turkish food is popular among tasters. Tasters visit regions as part of their holiday.

becomes

Turkish food is popular among tasters, who visit regions as part of their holiday.

Note that in the sentences containing which and who, the two parts of the sentence are separated by a comma. The second part of the sentence is called a non-defining relative clause. This is because what comes after the comma is simply additional information, which we do not need in order to understand the whole sentence.

Defining

The second type of relative clause also connects two ideas, but in a different way. Look at the following sentences.

* A tagine is a pot. A tagine is used to cook food in.

Also

Tasters are tourists. Tasters are interested in the food of the region.

Main clause   Relative clause

In this case, the relative clause is not just giving additional information, and does not come after a comma. Instead, it is an essential part of the sentence that helps us to identify which things or people we are talking about.
Note that in a defining relative clause, we can use that instead of which or who.

A tagine is a pot that is used to cook food in.
Tasters are tourists that are interested in the food of the region.
We cannot use that in non-defining relative clauses.

NOT I really love sushi, that is our national dish.

6 Making predictions

will

The most common way of making predictions is by using will.

Positive
The rain will last all day. It usually does.
= subject + will + infinitive without to

Negative
These strong winds won't die down today, I'm afraid.
= subject + won't (will not) + infinitive without to

Questions
Will the storms last all day?
= Will + subject + infinitive without to

However, because we are often uncertain about the likely outcome of a situation, it is common to use will in combination with the verb think.

I think it will be overcast all day.
We don't think these heavy showers will last.
Do you think that the rain will clear soon?

Note that we do not tend to use the positive form of think with won't / will not.

NOT We think these heavy showers won't last.

Other question forms when asking someone to make a prediction are

Do you know if the café will be open?
= Do you know if + subject + will + infinitive without to and

Do you know what the food will be like?
= Do you know what + subject + will be like

It is more polite to use Do you think ...? or Do you know ...? when asking someone to make a prediction, as will is rather impolite.

going to

We use going to + infinitive without to to make a prediction based on what has already started to happen. For example, we could use going to to predict rainy or stormy weather if the sky has started to get darker.

Look at those clouds! It's going to rain.
= going to + infinitive without to

We also use going to when reporting a prediction made by someone else. If we are not talking about a specific person, we use the pronoun they.

You should take a coat. They said it's going to get a bit colder this afternoon.

7 The Passive

We use a Passive verb when we do not know who did something, or when it is not important to say who did it. While we can use the Passive to say something in a more formal way, it is used very commonly when we are describing buildings and attractions.

Present Passive

The Present Passive describes a scene, process, or situation that exists in the present.

The main hall is used for special occasions.
The gardens are lit at night.

= subject + Present Simple of be + past participle

If we put the two sentences above into an Active form, we would need to add a subject to say who was using the main hall and who lit the gardens at night.

They use the main hall for special occasions.
People light the gardens at night.

We use the Passive to avoid having to mention who performed the action if we think it is not relevant, or if we don't know who did it.
Past Passive

The Past Passive describes a finished action, rather than a situation that exists now.

The tower was added in 1654.
The walls of the city were built in the tenth century.

As for the Present Passive, if we used an Active verb form, we would need to add a subject.

Someone added the tower in 1654.

They built the walls of the city in the tenth century.

Passive with by, of, for

Note that it is common to use these prepositions to add more information after a Passive verb form.

by  We use by if we want to use a Passive verb form but also need to mention who made or did something.

The Eiffel tower was built by Gustave Eiffel.

of  We use of to describe the material that is used to make something.

The building is made of stone.

for  We use for + -ing form or noun to talk about the purpose of, or reason for, doing something.

The Great Hall was built by the prince for entertaining guests.

Please give me a call as soon as you arrive at the hotel.

NOT  ... as soon as you will arrive at the hotel.

Present Continuous

We can also use the Present Continuous to talk about a pre-arranged event, but not one that is part of a regular programme or timetable.

The coach is leaving in five minutes.

We're all going to the club tonight.

NOT  The coach is leaving every Sunday at noon.

It is very common to use a time expression with the Present Continuous when talking about the future, so that it is not confused with something that is happening now. Compare the following.

FUTURE  The coach is leaving in five minutes.

PRESENT  The coach is leaving.

will future

will is not normally used to talk about timetables or planned events. We use will when we decide what to do at that particular moment, e.g. to promise or offer to do something, and to make requests.

I'll wake you up before we arrive.

subject + will ('ll) + infinitive without to Future Continuous

We use the Future Continuous to talk about what will be happening at a certain point in the future.

During the journey, we'll be offering you a complimentary drink.

subject + will + be + -ing form

going to future

We use going to + infinitive without to when we talk about our intentions. We have already decided what to do.

I'm going to read out your names to check that you're all here.

subject + Present Simple of be + -ing form going to is also used when we can see the result of something that is happening now.

Take a coat. It's going to be cold.
Language of calming and dealing with a crisis

We can use several ways to reassure someone about a situation.

Imperative

Positive

Please keep calm.

Calm down.

= infinitive without to + adjective or adverb

Note that some verbs are followed by a preposition, e.g.

Try + to Look + at

Try to relax.

Look at me.

= infinitive without to + preposition + infinitive without to

Negative

Don’t worry.

Please don’t apologize.

= Don’t + infinitive without to

Let

The verb let means ‘allow’, and is used in the imperative form. It is followed by a name or object pronoun, e.g. me, him, her.

Positive

Let me explain.

Please let us help you.

= Let + object pronoun + infinitive without to

The negative form Don’t let + object pronoun + infinitive without to exists, but is not used when calming a person down.

Let’s

Note that we can use Let’s as a means of suggesting a solution or course of action. This is not the same as the imperative Let, and has a different form.

Let’s go and ask at the desk.

= Let’s + infinitive without to

going to

going to is another way to talk about a decision or course of action that we have made. We use going to when we have thought about the situation, and have come to a decision.

This is what we’re going to do.

= going to + infinitive without to

will

We use will when we are offering to do something, or when we decide to do something immediately.

I’ll tell you what I’ll do.

= subject + will (‘I’ll’) + infinitive without to

9 Indefinite pronouns, Helping kids to make things

Indefinite pronouns

We can combine any, every, no, and some with -one / -body / -thing, or -where. You must leave a space between no and one, but all other combinations form a single word. The meanings of the new words are easy to guess, for example anyone / anybody = it doesn’t matter who everywhere = all the places nothing = not one thing someone / somebody = a person

We use any when we are talking generally, whereas some could refer to a particular person, thing, or place.

We use a singular verb with all these combinations.

Everyone has breakfast in the same restaurant.

Nothing is wrong with the programme.

After words with -one or -body, we normally use they / them / their to show possession, rather than his / her / its.

Everyone is having their lunch.

Generally, when any-, every-, no-, and some- are the subject of the sentence or clause, we use a positive verb.

No one has complained.

Anything is possible on this tour!

Make sure that someone knows where you are going.
When any- is the object of the sentence, the main verb is negative. It is also common to use any- in questions.

I didn’t like anything on the menu.
Did you learn anything on the course?

When no- is the object of the sentence, the main verb is positive.

I learnt nothing on the course.

some is not commonly used in the negative or in questions, while every- can be used in the positive, negative, and in questions.

We can combine something, everyone, etc. with other adjectives.

Did you go anywhere interesting?

Helping kids to make things

When giving instructions, we often use the imperative.

Positive

Inflate one of the balloons.
= infinitive without to

Negative

Don’t put too much water in it.
= Don’t + infinitive without to

In a series of instructions, we need to be able to say in what order things have to be done. One way to do this is to use words such as now, then, and after that.

Now get another balloon and fill it with water. Then tie a knot in it.

Another way is to use when with either the Present Simple or Present Perfect. Be careful, as the tense you use changes the meaning of the sentence.

When + Present Simple

We use when with the Present Simple to describe two actions that happen at the same time.

When you tie the knot, make the shape of the balloon as round as possible.

When + Present Perfect

We use when with the Present Perfect to talk about one action that follows another.

First action

When you’ve let the air out, place the first balloon inside it.

Remember that the form of the Present Perfect is subject + have / has + past participle.

Instead of When + Present Perfect, we can use Once. Once you’ve stretched the balloon, fill it with water.

10 Responding to special requests, Identifying and checking special needs

Responding to special requests

There are several expressions we can use when responding to requests. These carry different degrees of certainty, ranging from ‘definitely yes’ to ‘definitely not’.

Definitely yes

Of course.
No problem.

Probably yes

That shouldn’t be a problem.
I don’t see why not.

Possibly yes

There might be a problem (if ...).
You may need to pay something.
I’m not sure.
We may possibly be able to make arrangements.

Definitely not

Sorry, you can’t.
You mustn’t remove them from their natural habitat.

Note the use of modal verbs shouldn’t, can’t, mustn’t, may, and might in the sentences above.

Form of modal verbs

All modal verbs are followed by infinitive without to. They do not have an -s in the third person singular, and do not use the auxiliary do to form the negative and questions.

Positive

That should be all right.

= subject + must / can / should / may / might + infinitive without to Negative
You mustn’t remove them from their natural habitat.
= subject + mustn’t / can’t / shouldn’t / may not / mightn’t + infinitive without to

Note that in this form may not is never shortened to mayn’t.

Questions
Can we take some of the plants back with us?
= Must / Can / Should / May / Might + subject + infinitive without to Use of modal verbs

Should / shouldn’t is often used when we are advising someone (not) to do something. When responding to a request, it generally means that an action may or may not be possible.

Might / mightn’t is always used to talk about a small possibility of something happening.

May / may not is similar to might / mightn’t, but suggests a stronger possibility.

Can / can’t is used in many situations, e.g. to talk about ability, to ask for permission, and to make requests. When responding to a request, we use can / can’t to say what someone is (not) permitted to do because of the circumstances.

Must / mustn’t is a stronger way of telling someone that they can or can’t do something, generally because there is a rule or law which requires or forbids it.

Identifying and checking special needs
We can use a Passive form when we want to check that arrangements have been made.

Present Passive
We can use the Present Simple to talk about a timetabled event.

Everything is set up for the guests.
= subject + Present Simple of be + past participle

Note that the past participle of many verbs is the same as the Past Simple form.

<table>

give gave given

We can use the Passive in other tenses.

Present Continuous Passive
The hotel is being upgraded.
= subject + Present Simple of be + -ing form + past participle

Past Passive
A new extension was added last year.
= subject + Past Simple of be + past participle

Present Perfect Passive
The whole entrance has been adapted.
= subject + Present Perfect of be + past participle need + to be + past participle need + -ing form

need + -ing form is more informal.

The bar needs upgrading.
= subject + Present Simple of need + -ing form

The forms need + to be and need + -ing form have a similar meaning when we talk about work that is necessary.

The bar needs to be upgraded.
The bar needs upgrading.

However, when we talk about people, we generally use need + to be.

NOT We need accommodating in ground floor rooms.

Need can also be used in other tenses.
The group will need to come through reception.
11 Describing dimensions, capacity, and facilities

Describing dimensions, capacity, and facilities
We talk about dimensions in the following ways.

Present Simple of measure
The room measures 30 metres by 15 metres.

Noun + be
The dimensions of the room are 30 metres by 15 metres.
To talk about capacity, we use the following.

can
Can + infinitive without to is used to talk about many things but, when combined with the verb seat, refers specifically to the capacity of a room or other space.
The room can seat over 500 people.
Prepositions such as over and up to are frequently used when describing capacity.

Noun + have / has a capacity of Both rooms have a capacity of up to 500 people.
To talk about facilities we use the following forms.

Present Passive
We can use the Present Passive of the verb equip + with.
The room is equipped with a projector.
= subject + Present Simple of be + past participle

Present Simple of contain
The room contains audio-visual equipment and a flip chart.

can
We use can + infinitive without to to talk about facilities when combined with a personal pronoun and a verb such as provide or offer.
We can provide a lamination service.

have / has got
The room has got videoconferencing facilities.
We have got a digital projector.

There is (')s / There are
There's a laptop in each room.

12 Responding to problems

When responding to problems, we often use will or can + infinitive without to to tell someone what we are going to do.
I'll ask the engineer to look at your air-conditioning unit.
I can ask the housekeeper to dry-clean your coat.

get
Another common way to talk about helping someone is to use get. This is a very common verb in English, and has several different meanings. It is found in many phrasal verbs, e.g. get out, as well as in expressions such as get into bed. Some meanings are used more in speech, e.g.
get + an idea or joke = understand – I don't get it. Can you explain it again?
However, there are many other meanings of get that can be used in both written and spoken English.

have got = have – Have you got any luggage?
get (+ noun) = receive – I didn't get the message.
get (+ noun) = arrive at / in – I got to the airport just in time.
get (+ adjective) = become – It's getting very warm.
get (+ noun) = obtain or buy – It's cold. I'll get an extra blanket.

When responding to problems, it often means 'obtain'.
To make it clear that we are doing something for another person, we generally add for + pronoun or noun.
I'll get an extra blanket for you.
I'll get some aspirin for your wife.

Note that another very common way of saying this is for the person, e.g. you, to follow get.
I'll get you an extra blanket.
I'll get your wife some aspirin.
get + object + infinitive with to

We use this structure when we promise to ask another person to help in some way.

I’ll get maintenance to look at the heating in your room.

I’ll get the porter to help you.

I’ll get the housekeeper to give you a blanket.

Greeting and Introducing

1 Hello, Peter – it’s great to see you again. Welcome to Atlanta. How was your flight?
2 Hello, and thank you for joining us tonight. My name’s Prabhat and this is my colleague, Amphi. We’ll be looking after you on tonight’s excursion.
3 Good evening, Mr Ellman. Is everything to your satisfaction? Can I get you some more wine?
4 May I introduce myself? My name is Chie Mashida and I’m the manager. I’d like to introduce you to the people who are going to be looking after you during the conference. This is Masako ...
5 A Hi, it’s Johann, isn’t it? Glad you could make it. How are you doing?
6 Good, yeah. You?
A Not bad. Have you met Lucy? She organized this reception.
6 Ladies and gentlemen, on behalf of Paradise Cruises, we’d like to welcome you all on board. We’re pleased to offer you a complimentary glass of champagne.
7 You must be Ms Holwegger. Welcome to Copenhagen. Let me take your bag for you.
8 Welcome back, Dr Allegrati. Nice to see you again. We’ve put you in your usual room.

Car hire dialogue

E = Employee, C = Customer
E Good afternoon, sir. Can I help you?
C Yes, hello. We pre-booked a car and we’ve come to pick it up.
E Certainly. What’s your name?
C Jacobson.
E OK, was it an online booking?
C Yes, we booked it from the UK.
E Right. Here we are. You booked the four-door economy manual with air-conditioning?
C That’s right.
E We’ve got a special offer at the moment. Would you like to upgrade to the compact 4-door for just an extra ten rand a day?
C No, thanks. There’s just the three of us. I think we’ll be OK in the economy.
E OK. I just need to check a few things. You’re going to drop off here in ten days’ time. Is that correct?
C Correct. On the 21st of August.
E Can you confirm your age?
C I’m 26.
E And you’ve decided to stay with the four-door economy manual with air-conditioning?
C Yes.
E I notice you’ve only booked the collision damage waiver and the third-party liability. Do you want to take out any additional insurance cover?
C I did think about the windscreen cover, but I decided against it.
E OK. Do you want to book any extras?
C I thought we’d booked the baby seat?
E It’s not here, but that’s no problem, sir. We can easily add it. How old is the little one?
C She’s two.
E Right, I’ll add that to the invoice. Is there anything else you require?
C No, that’s everything, thank you.
E OK, could you just sign here?
C Here? OK.
E How will you be paying the balance?
C By credit card. Here you are.
E Thank you. Right, Mr Jacobson, here’s the key. This is my colleague, Evan. He’ll bring the car round for you and show you the basics. And we’ll see you in ten days’ time. Have a great trip.
C Thank you.

R = Receptionist, G = Guest
R Good evening, Ms Meier. How nice to see you again.
G Good evening. It’s nice to be back, even if it’s for work.
R Well, if I didn’t have a job to do to ... I’m afraid your usual room isn’t free, Ms Meier. But I can put you in 615. That’s on the next floor and has the same view. Would that be all right?
G Yes, of course.
R Good evening, sir. How can we help you?
G Do you have a double room for tonight?
R Just one moment and I’ll check availability. Would that be a non-smoking room, sir?
G Preferably.
R And just for the one night?
G Yes, just for tonight.
R Yes, we can do that. Could I see some identification, please?
G I have a reservation in my name, Scott. George Scott.
R Mr Scott. Let me see ... Yes, here you are. A twin-bedded room, non-smoking, three nights.
G That’s right.
R Could I just see some identification, please, Mr Scott ...
G I have a reservation in my name, Scott. George Scott.
R Mr Scott. Let me see ... Yes, here you are. A twin-bedded room, non-smoking, three nights.

1 Could you tell me where the hairdresser's is?
R Certainly, madam. It's in the basement between the newsagent's and Meeting room 1.
G Thank you.
R You're welcome.

2 Excuse me. Is there a gift shop here?
R Yes, sir. It's in the basement opposite the hairdresser's.

3 Excuse me. Where's Meeting room 1?
R In the basement at the end of the corridor, madam.

Unit 2 Listening

The staff of hotels

I = Interviewer, R = Roberta

1 Roberta, can you tell us a little about the staffing at the Concordia?
R Well, the Hotel Concordia is part of a larger group so we've got the same structure as the other hotels in the chain. It's a medium-sized hotel, and it's divided into three departments - front office, housekeeping, and food and beverages. Food and beverages covers the restaurant, bar, cafeteria, and the kitchen. In the kitchen we've got a head chef, Giovanni, and three junior chefs. There are two kitchen assistants, as well. Then for the restaurant and bars, we have a head waiter and six waiters.

2 What about housekeeping?
R That's divided into maintenance and rooms. At the moment, there's one person in maintenance, Enrico, and on rooms there's the head housekeeper, Carlotta, and her team. She's got five housekeepers working for her right now, though in the high season we usually contract two more.

3 You use the term housekeeper. Is that the same as chambermaid?
R Yes, and in the past housekeepers were usually called chambermaids. But we prefer housekeeper. We're talking about trained professionals here, and the idea of a maid sounds more like a servant than a paid professional.

Tourist information

1 A Good morning. You're through to the rail information line. This is Wayne speaking. How can I help you?
B Hello. I'd like to find out about availability for a trip to Manchester tomorrow.
A Certainly, madam. What time will you be travelling?
B Around nine in the morning.
A Fine, how many in the party?
B Two adults and one child.
A OK, I'll just check for you . . .
B Of course, madam. The maps are down there to your left, on the shelf next to the guidebooks.
A Oh, yes. Thank you.
B You're welcome. Is there anything else I can help you with?
A No, that's all, thank you.

2 A Do you need any help?
B We were just looking for some information on places to eat in the evening, where we can take the kids.
A I see. How old are they?
B Two and four.
A Have a look through this guidebook. They've got a list of places with different facilities, including high chairs and so on.

Unit 3 Listening

How do I get to . . . ?

a When you come out of the Information Centre, turn right and go down the High Street. Walk on through the Market Place until you come to a fork in the road. If you take the right-hand fork and go along Queen Street, you'll go past some nice antique shops and a small art gallery and eventually you'll come to a green hill. Head up the hill past the cannon and you're there. There are some lovely views along the coastline.

b The best way is to cut through Church Street - it's just over there to the right. Can you see it? If you turn right at the end of Church Street you'll go past a lovely little green and you'll see the lighthouse - you can't miss it. Just walk towards the lighthouse and then the seafront is just ahead of you. When you get to the seafront, turn left and you can either walk along the beach or the cliff. You'll see it in the distance sticking out to sea. It shouldn't take you any longer than fifteen minutes.

Unit 4 Listening

A rep for all seasons

Exercise 2

1. Hi, I'm Jason. My job means that I have to look after people of all ages. Obviously I look after families, but I also look after some groups of men or women on holiday. You have to be a good person to do this type of work.

2. My name's Luke McClure, and my job is to make sure that groups of men and women aged between 18 and 35 have the time of their life on holiday. There are loads of different names for what I do—it depends on the tour company. Right now I'm a Club 18-30 rep.

3. Hi! I'm Katerina Matheoudakis. I'm the person that takes holidaymakers to and from the airport. Actually it's a very important job because normally I'm the first person they see. I represent the tour operator so I've always got to be friendly and approachable. During the coach trips to the resorts...

4. I'm Anne Marie. What I do is very similar to being a family rep, except that we are always outside, even in the rain. Apart from the usual reps' duties, I'm responsible for montage—that's French for putting up tents—and démontage—French for—surprise-taking them down again.

Exercise 3

Jason

The main duties of a family rep? Well, obviously the first thing is transfers to and from the airport. And on the first morning I run a Welcome meeting where I tell people about the hotel and the area. I also try to sell excursions then, because I get commission on them if I do. I guide excursions—not all of the ones I sell, but two or three each week. Let's see... I check the accommodation and do any safety checks, as well. And I have to be ready 24/7 to answer the customers' queries and solve their problems.

Luke

As a Club rep, my main responsibilities are answering customers' queries and doing the Welcome meeting. That's a great chance for reps to sell events and things like T-shirts, hats, sunglasses. I suppose the thing I like most is organizing entertainment. We do pool parties, themed party nights, we take customers to discos—and we make sure they all come home! There's bar crawls... Of course, I do transfers. Not much fun. And then there's what I like least, which is cabaret. I don't mind the singing. But some of the games... Well, it wouldn't be my choice.

Unit 4 Listening

Welcome to paradise!

OK, everybody. There's one thing left on this morning's agenda—the welcome meeting, which the resort's reps do in pairs. Now I know that this isn't so important for you people as transfer reps because this year you won't be doing this. But you will be helping the resort reps from time to time, so please do listen.

OK, so let's imagine we've just dropped off the last of the new arrivals. So, go back to the main hotel and find the resort manager—for those of you going out to Crete, that's me of course. It's really important to do this as there may have been last-minute changes in the meeting arrangements.

After finding the resort manager, go to the meeting room and make sure the compulsory drinks are ready. Also check you have the right paperwork with you. You'd be surprised how easy it is to start a meeting and then realize you've got the wrong notes.

As people start arriving, greet them with a friendly smile and welcome them to the meeting. This should last around 25 minutes—certainly no longer—and should be informative and interesting. Your personality has to come through strongly here. Remember, they'll be tired, so if you're not good, they'll lose interest quickly.

Start by talking about the hotels. Next, talk a bit about the resort and the area, the places to go, and so on. Once you've got them interested in getting out of the swimming pool, tell them about the excursions. Encourage people to book as many excursions as possible because this is where you earn commission. We'll be looking at sales techniques tomorrow morning.

OK, bring the meeting to a close, take any spontaneous bookings for excursions, and then stay for a while to see if anybody has any questions. Relax now, and socialize briefly. The more people you get to know, the better you can do your job. The better you do your job, the happier I am.

Unit 5 Listening

Our national dish

1. I think it's great to see Japanese restaurants opening all over the world. I really love our food, especially sushi, which is our national dish. And I also really like sashimi—which is just raw fish. That's fantastic, too.

2. The problem with curry is that it isn't really Indian. At least, what a lot of non-Indians understand by the word curry isn't really much like what we eat in our homes in India. And to a lot of people, the word curry means something hot and spicy, but a lot of Indian dishes are very mild, and use yogurt or cream.

3. There are so many dishes here that it's hard to say what our national dish is. But the basic food of ordinary Mexicans is tortillas. We eat them with a meal like bread. They're used in lots of typical dishes—baked: for enchiladas, fried for tacos, or grilled for quesadillas.

Describing dishes

1. Are you ready to order?
A. Almost, but can you tell me what a Wiener schnitzel is?
B. Wiener schnitzel. It’s meat. It’s a kind of beef — a slice of young beef... I think you say ‘veal’.
A. Oh, it's veal!
B. Yes, veal. The meat is covered in breadcrumbs and then fried in butter. Sometimes the breadcrumbs are seasoned with black pepper.
A. Does it come with anything? Any vegetables?
B. Yes. Schnitzel is served with potato salad and a slice of lemon. If you want, you can also have roast potatoes, French fries, or rice.
A. Hmm. Sounds nice. And what is...
2. Hello again. Have you had a chance to look at the menu?
B. Yes, but there are things we don’t understand.
A. That’s no problem. I'll try to explain them.
B. OK, can you tell us what tagines are?
A. Yes, that's meat — normally it's chicken or beef — and it's cooked with potatoes, carrots, and perhaps some other vegetables. It's a type of stew. Tagines are the pots that it's cooked in.
B. Mm, that sounds OK. And harira?
A. Harira is a bit like tomato soup, but it's got other vegetables in it too.
B. Mm, that would be nice as a starter. And the salade Marocaine?
A. A salad: Marocaine is normally made of chopped tomatoes, onions, green peppers, and cucumber. But here we also add boiled potatoes and olives. It's very nice.
B. OK. Can we have another five minutes while we choose?
A. Yes, of course. There’s no hurry.

Unit 6 Listening

How to deal with complaints

H = Head waiter, A, B, C, D = trainee waiters
H. OK, everybody. Let’s talk about complaints and how we’re going to deal with them. Of course, most important of all is to accept them. Complaints are a way of getting better, so be positive. Secondly, most complaints are about things that are easy to do something about. And for the really difficult complaints, you’ve got me. So, put yourselves in the situation. You’ve got a customer complaining. What’s the first step?
A. Let the customer speak.
H. Good. That’s right. Listen, without interrupting. And show the customer that you’re listening. What’s next?
A. Apologize.
H. Good. Apologize. For example?
B. Say I’m sorry or I’m very sorry.
H. And apologize with care in your voice. Feel it. Feel sorry. Now, the third stage. What about questions?
C. We only ask relevant questions, and we shouldn’t ask too many questions.
H. Well, you’ve been doing your homework. Great. But there’s one essential time to ask questions.
D. If we’re not clear about what the customer wants us to do, we ask questions to make sure we understand completely.
H. Well done. Now, the last thing. What about giving the customer a solution to the problem? Let’s see... let’s say the cutlery is dirty.
B. We say something like I’m very sorry. I’ll change it right away.
H. Or they asked for water and you forgot about it?
C. I’m very sorry. I’ll get it right away. I do apologize.
H. Excellent. I can see we’re going to have a great summer together.

3. Rural tourism has given new life to an old industry here in Tamil Nadu. In the past in this part of India, people made many things from the banana tree.
A. A lot of our traditional foods are made from banana. And we make baskets from fibre that we make from the banana tree leaves. My mother and grandmother made baskets, and now I am learning to do it too.

Checking in at a campsite

1. R = Receptionist, M = Mrs Crowshaw
R. Hello. Can I help you?
M. Yes, we booked a place online. The name’s Crowshaw.
R. Crowshaw. Let me just get your file... Here you are. Two adults, two children, two weeks. And it’s one pitch for a motorhome, and a second pitch for a family tent.
M. Two pitches, that’s right. But it’s not a family tent. It’s a small tent — for the children.
R. Oh, I’ll just change it. There you are. One motorhome, and one small tent. Now could you give me your passport for a moment?
M. Of course. Here you are.
R. Will you be using an electric hook-up?
M. Yes.
R. Do you want that on both pitches?
M. No, only on the motorhome pitch.
R. OK. Could you just sign here, please? OK. This is for you. It’s your registration card. Can you hang it over the door of the tent, please? You’re in Zone B in pitch thirty-four and thirty-five...

2. T = Tourist, R = Receptionist
T. Hello. Are you full?
R. We’ve got some space until Friday. What were you looking for?
T. There are four of us. We’ve got tents.
R. Are they family tents?
T. No, no. They’re small tents. They’re mountain tents.
R. And is that four tents?
T. No. Only two.
R. OK. So that’s two small tents until Friday. That’s four nights. I’ll put you all on one pitch to save you money.
T. Oh, good.
R. Have you got a car?
T. No, we’ve got bikes
R. Motorbikes?

Describing a festival

Good morning, everyone. Welcome to Venice. My name is Carlotta and I'll be your guide for this weekend when you see the Festa del Redentore, the Festival of the Redeemer, the high point of the Venice summer, with its spectacular fireworks display.

Before I start, can you all hear me at the back? Good. OK, let me start by telling you a little about the history of the festical.

From 1575 to 77, as you may know, Venice was hit by a devastating plague. It killed more than a third of the city's inhabitants. In 1576, the city's leader, the Doge, promised to build a church dedicated to the Redeemer, in return for help in ending the plague. On July 13th, 1577, the plague was declared over, and work began to build the church. It was also decided that Venice would forever give thanks on the third Sunday of July.

Now, moving on to the festival itself. What happens is this: from early on the Saturday, boats are decorated with flowers, lanterns, and balloons. St Mark's laggon fills with as many as two thousand boats. You'll see their occupants eating and drinking as they wait for the traditional spectacular display of fireworks. By the way, if you're wondering about dinner on Saturday evening, you can make arrangements with the hotel for dinner on a boat. At around 11.30 p.m., the display begins. You'll see fireworks illuminating the silhouetted spires, domes, and bell towers of the city.

On Sunday, you'll see a pontoon of decorated gondolas and other boats strung across the Giudecca canal. This is to allow the faithful to walk to the church of the Redentore. The climax of the festival, and the most significant part if you remember what I said about the history of the festival, is the mass held in the presence of the Patriarch of Venice. This is a reminder that the Festa has a serious side.

Oh, one thing I forgot to mention is that the traditional food for Saturday night is roast duck, watermelon, and of course wine. So, that's the Festa del Redentore. As you can see, it's a wonderful event. OK, are there any questions?

From tour guide to tour manager

I've always been interested in tourism, so when I left school, I took a Tour Guide Course at college. This is a pretty thorough course and, in fact, people come from all over Europe to study on it because the qualification you get is accepted in many other European countries.

Competition for the vacancies is tough - I didn't get the job I wanted right away. Then I saw an ad for a company offering 18 to 35 coach tours of Europe, and applied. I didn't actually need my qualification to apply, but you had to have experience of travelling in Europe. I'd been around France, Germany, Italy, and the Czech Republic in the holidays and I think this went in my favour.

My first year was as Tour Guide, working under a Tour Manager. This year I'm a Tour Manager, which means I'm in charge of a Tour Guide, a driver, and a coach of up to 50 holidaymakers on a fourteen-day tour of Europe.

We do everything, including providing a commentary, organizing excursions and parties, and checking everybody in and out of the pre-booked accommodation along the way. It's great fun, but it's most definitely hard work - it's never a holiday for us!

Unit 8 Listening

Practicalities on tour

S Sarah, R Receptionist
S Hi, this is Sarah, the guide from Galloway Tours. I'm just checking you got my message about the later arrival tonight.
R Let me see... yes, you're not getting in until 9.00 p.m. - is that correct?
S Yes, and did you get the message about the late dinner as well?
R Yes, we've booked you a supper for 9.30 in the bar.
S Great. While I've got you, can I just check something else? There's some confusion on the rooming list. Ern, in the printout I've got Mr and Mrs Sandford in separate rooms, but it should be a double.
R Did you say Mr and Mrs Sandford?
S Yeah.
R OK... No, we've got them for a double.
S Oh good, and will that have a double bed or twins?
Unit 8 Listening

Problems on tour

G = Guide, P = Mrs Parsons

G: OK, ladies and gentlemen, I'm very sorry about this, but as you can see, we have a bit of a problem. Let me explain the situation. Unfortunately, the coach has broken down and we're going to have to wait for a relief coach. Now, please keep calm. There's nothing to worry about as the company assure me the relief coach will be here in less than an hour. I know it's very hot on the coach. So this is what we're going to do: we're going to leave the coach and go up the bank to rest in the shade of the trees up on your left. But we have to be very careful as we're on a busy motorway. Um, the driver will lead you up the bank. I hope that's clear? So starting from the front... oh, yes, and leave your bags on the coach, just take your valuables and any water if you have any... Oh dear, what's the matter?

P: I'm not sure I can climb up that bank. I've got a bad leg.

G: OK, please don't worry. Mrs Parsons, just sit here for a while. We'll let the others off first.

P: But I really don't think I can get up there.

G: I know, I understand. Um, I'll tell you what we'll do. When everyone else is off you can stay on the coach and sit at the front with the door open, you'll be cool. Would you prefer that?

P: Oh, yes dear, that would be lovely.

G: OK. Now just wait here and try to relax. Here are some tissues. I'll get some water for you.

P: Thank you so much.

Unit 9 Listening

Making a water ball

OK, are you all listening? Have you all got your balloons? Has everybody got a pair of scissors? Yes? So, blow up one of the balloons to stretch it a little. Give it a good stretch. That's it. Great. Now, once you've stretched the balloon, fill it with water and tie a knot. When you tie the knot, try to make the shape of the balloon as round as possible. Do you see what I mean? Look at mine. Can I help you, Pedro? OK, that's good. Now get the scissors and cut the tail of the balloon. That's right. Cut the tail. Great.

Now get another balloon, blow it up, let the air out, and when you've let the air out, place the first balloon inside it. Work in twos and help each other. One of you hold the second balloon as open as possible, and the other one put the first balloon inside. That's it. Lovely. OK. So now, cut the tail of the second balloon. No, there's no need to tie it this time. Have you all done that? Yes! OK. So now do this again and again until you've used up all the balloons. Who needs help? Marianne, Pierre – you OK?

When you've finished, what you've got is a ball that bounces and that's really good for practising juggling. If you drop it, it bounces back and you don't have to bend over to pick it up.

Unit 9 Listening

Getting the job

Q = Interviewer, I = Ineke

Q: Ineke, what attracted you to the job of entertainment worker?
I Well, I wanted to practice what I'd been studying at university, especially my foreign languages. And I wanted to earn a bit of money.
Q And what was it like in Bali?
I It was a fantastic experience. At first I was a bit nervous because it was the first time I was going to be so far away from home for such a long time... But everything worked out fine.
Q How did you find the job?
I I put my CV on a website for jobs in tourism, and an agency in Holland emailed me with the job in Bali.
Q There was an initial selection process. What was that like?
I Well, we had a personal interview in Rotterdam and a series of tests - how you did with a microphone, what sort of initiative you had, what sort of person you were... And then after the interview they asked me to go to the training sessions.
Q There was specific training for the job?
I Yes. They showed us everything we were going to do... how to organize games, how to keep groups under control, how to use a microphone.
Q Really?
I Yes, how to hold the microphone, the tone of voice you use, how you had to stand on stage... because most of us were beginners. We'd never held a microphone.
Q So the training was good?
I It was tough, but it was excellent.
Q And did you like the job?
I I loved it. The atmosphere, the way my colleagues were always there to help, the hotel... I loved it. And they had everything organized. It was hard to come home, in fact.

Disability access

M = Michael, J = Jane
M: Hatton Hall Hotel, Michael speaking. How can I help you?
J: Hi, this is Jane Wicks. I'm the guide bringing the Access for All adventure group at the weekend. I'm just calling to check a few things.
M: Yes, I think everything's set up for them.
J: That's good. I just need to run through a few things. We've got three wheelchair users, but all the group - that's ten in all - have mobility difficulties of some sort, so we need to be accommodated in ground-floor rooms. Is that going to be OK?
M: Yes, no problem. All the ground-floor rooms have recently been adapted to allow for wheelchair use. They've got wide doors, automatic opening and low-level switches.
J: Great. Are the other facilities all OK for the group?
M: Yes, mostly. Toilets and all the signage conform to regulations. The bar on the top floor still needs upgrading, because the lift doesn't go that far. But there's a bar on the ground floor and the restaurant has been renovated, and we've got ramps and handrails in all public areas - except the garden that is; that still needs to be upgraded. Oh, and another thing, we're making some changes to the reception area at the moment, so I'm afraid the low-level reception desk is out of action. Is that going to be a problem?
J: No, I don't think so. I'll be doing a group check-in. But the group will need to come through reception - is that OK?
M: It's only the desk that's affected. The whole entrance area has been adapted - ramps and so on - so there's no need to worry.
J: Good, I think that's it. Now I've got to call ahead to the activity centre to check things there. Thanks for your help.
M: Pleasure. See you at the weekend.

Unit 11 Listening

The needs of the business traveller

J = Interviewer, C = Carlos Lozano
J: What do business travellers look for most in a travel company?
C: Mainly it's speed and efficiency, no fuss, not to have to worry about the arrangements. They want to be able to say 'we want this' and we do it. Ordinary tourists, maybe they want to spend time talking about the different possibilities - it's part of the fun for them, but not business travellers. They want to be able to book last minute, and 24 hours a day - and to make changes at the last minute - and things like express check-in and use of a business lounge at airports. They also want the personal touch. We allocate an account manager to each of our clients and they have all the client history at their fingertips, things like preferences on window or aisle seats, type of hotel room, meal options. We like to know our clients.
J: Yes, that must be important.
C: Yes, and it means we can arrange everything for them - flights, transfers, hotel, car hire, meeting rooms.
J: So it's a kind of package.
C: Not really a package, more of a menu - 'this is what we can offer - which services do you want us to arrange for you?'
J: As far as hotel requirements go, what do business travellers tend to look for?
C: Assuming the basics of comfort, cleanliness, fast internet access, and so on, the number one is location - centre of town, near to the airport, both of those if possible.
J: Business travel has an image of luxury high costs, high expense accounts, and so on. Is that true?
Certainly not. Businesses these days are looking for value for money. Of course, compared to regular tourists, they still tend to use higher quality accommodation and upgraded travel, particularly when entertaining important clients. For us it’s a bit of balancing act—providing excellent quality and service, but not charging too much. But we find ways to go the extra mile.

Go the extra mile? What do you mean by that?

Giving a little bit extra that will make them appreciate us and justify why they should use us rather than book direct over the Internet. For example, I’ve already mentioned the personal touch, but we also offer support services such as info packs on the place they’re going to—simple fact sheets with practicalities of time difference, climate, transport services, visa and health requirements, and so on. Also, we produce a mini Culture Guide’, covering basics of social etiquette and doing business with different cultures. It’s proved very popular.

That’s very interesting. Thanks for talking to us, Carlos.

You’re welcome.

Unit 12 Listening

Life in the front office

I = interviewer, E = Erika

Erika, is there a lot of routine to front office work?

There is if that’s how you see it. Of course, all jobs have routines, and a receptionist is no different. But if we spend all day dealing with emergencies, we wouldn’t last very long.

And what are your routines?

Checking guests in and out are the obvious ones. Then there’s allocating parking spaces, controlling access to the garage, taking bookings...

Taking messages?

That used to be a routine, but nowadays everybody has mobile phones, so we don’t get many messages.

What about questions? Do you get many questions?

More than you’d think. Of course, we get asked some questions again and again.

What can we see in the city? Can you recommend a restaurant? But answering questions is another chance to get to know your guests. In fact, when you monitor customer satisfaction, you often see comments that indicate that by making routine duties seem special, we make our guests feel important.

I = Are you responsible for monitoring guest satisfaction?

E = Not directly, but each day while they’re checking out, we get four or five guests to complete a short questionnaire. And when guests have a problem, they come to reception first, so we get first-hand information about how the hotel is working.

I = I suppose that dealing with problems is the worst of your duties?

E = Yes and no. Dealing with problems is yet another chance to get to know your guests. But if we don’t deal with them well, that can lead to a complaint which is a totally different thing.

Unit 12 Pronunciation

a. Could you put me through to room service, please?
b. Have you any idea where I can get a good meal?
c. Can you tell me the quickest way to the city centre?
d. Do you think I could speak to the housekeeper?
e. So I was wondering what you can do about it.
f. Do you think you could get someone to come and look at it?

Unit 12 Listening

Can I have my bill?

G = Guest, R = Receptionist

G = Hi there. Could I get my bill there? Room 705.
R = 705? It’s Mr Wiley, isn’t it?
G = Sure is.
R = Did you have anything from the minibar last night?
G = Nope.
R = OK, Mr Wiley, I’m just printing your bill out. Has everything been to your satisfaction?
G = Sure has.
R = Oh, I’m glad. Will you be paying by credit card, Mr Wiley?
G = Sure will.
R = Could I just have your card for a moment?
G = Yep. Here you are.
R = OK. Here’s your bill. Can I just ask you to check it?
G = OK. Mm. Looks fine to me.
R = So, if I could just ask you to sign here.
G = There you go.
R = Thank you. Here’s your credit card and this is your copy of the payment slip. It’s been a pleasure having you here.
G = Thank you.
